G. A. R. COMMANDER VAN SANT TALKS TO VETERANS IN BOSTON

Most Important Meeting Is the Encampment of the Grand Army at Faneuil Hall for the Elections.

BALLOT TOMORROW

Woman's Relief Corps Convened at Shawmut Congregational Church and Faces a Contest for Officers.

Commander-in-Chief S. R. Van Sant, national head of the G. A. R., spoke at this afternoon's session of the Massachusetts Grand Army encampment in Faneuil hall, Boston, at 1:30. Commander Van Sant spoke of the pleasure which it gave him to be in Boston, the scene of so many historical struggles, and about which were woven so many traditions of American independence.

He said he was glad to meet his old comrades of the Massachusetts encampment and make a patriotic and reminiscent talk. The commander especially mentioned the great progress which has been made by the organization since the war. At the close of the war they threw down their arms, he said, and taking up the offices of peace have been as successful with them as with the arms of war.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock Commander and Mrs. Van Sant will visit Post 5, in Lynn.

The Massachusetts G. A. R. and affiliated organizations, 40,000 strong, today are holding their annual encampments and conventions in Boston. The meetings will conclude tomorrow.

The organizations include the Grand Army, Sons of Veterans, Woman's Relief Corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., Daughters of Veterans and Sons of Veterans Auxiliary.

The most important of these events was the encampment of the G. A. R. at 10 a. m. in Faneuil hall, which was presided over by Department Commander John L. Parker of Lynn. As usual the senior and junior vice-commanders are due to be advanced, and for the office of junior vice-commander there are several candidates, but the contest is expected to be between Commander William J. Gillespie of post 7, Boston, and Past Commander George H. Hosley of post 11, Charlestown.

Prayer was offered by Chaplain George Lovejoy, and routine business was transacted and the credentials of the delegates examined. About 700 were present. The election will be held tomorrow at 10 o'clock.

Commander Van Sant will spend tomorrow morning in sight-seeing and in the afternoon he will install the new officers of the Massachusetts department at Faneuil hall. After the installation he will be the guest of honor at the annual department banquet at the American house. In the evening he will address the Woman's Relief Corps at the annual campfire at the Shawmut church.

Open Annual Convention of Woman's Relief Corps

The thirty-first annual convention of the department of Massachusetts, Woman's Relief Corps opened at 10 a. m. today, at the Shawmut Congregational church, Tremont and Brookline streets. Mrs. Elizabeth Putnam Sawyer presided. In the absence of the Rev. Adolph A. Berle, D.D., pastor of the Shawmut church, the Rev. Christian Groezinger, the assistant pastor, gave the address of welcome.

Following the address of welcome the chaplain, Ellen M. Stearns, offered a short prayer and the officers of the department that were present were introduced by the

CRIME CONFESSED BY B. G. SPENCER

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—Bertrand G. Spencer has made a complete confession of the murder of Miss Blackstone. He was arraigned in court today but made no plea and the case was continued until April 15.

Spencer was arrested Tuesday for the killing of Miss Martha Blackstone in the Dow residence on Round hill. He shot Miss Harriet Dow before he fled. The wounded woman later identified him.

In making his confession Spencer admitted he was the desperado who had terrorized Springfield for the past two years.

The slayer was caught through the medium of a little gold locket bearing the initials "B. G. S.," which was found near the scene of one of the peculiar burglaries. This clue put in the hands of detectives resulted in connecting Spencer with the burglary and the murder.

In Spencer's house on Porter avenue, West Springfield, were found a revolver, two black masks, several slouch hats, box of cartridges, and a large quantity of bracelets, watches, opera glasses, and stick pins, many of which bore different initials.

ROOSEVELTS ALONE TO SPEND WEEK ON HONEYMOON ROUTE

(By a Staff Correspondent of the United Press.)

ROME—After his departure from Rome tonight, Colonel Roosevelt intends to drop out of the public view as completely as possible until he and his wife arrive at Genoa on April 13.

In furtherance of this plan he has asked the newspaper correspondents who have been with him up to the present time to leave the party temporarily, rejoining him at Genoa.

There is a sentimental side to the President's desire for privacy at this time as he and Mrs. Roosevelt wish to retrace their honeymoon route of 24 years ago along the shores of the Mediterranean, between Spezia and Genoa.

So strong is their desire for isolation that even Kermit and Ethel will be with them but little before the time of their departure and arrival at Genoa.

At 11:30 o'clock tonight the Roosevelts will leave for Spezia and will make the trip from there to Genoa by automobile, stopping three days at Porto Maurizio, at the villa of Mrs. Roosevelt's sister, Miss Carow.

EVERETT ASKS AID IN PROTEST AGAINST ELEVATED'S FENCES

The Everett board of aldermen is to-day sending to every city and town in the metropolitan district letters asking for the cooperation of these municipalities in a petition to the Boston Elevated railway for the removal of the fences between the tracks at Boylston street station and at the South Station, in order that transfers may be made at these two points.

The same board today also notified the Boston & Northern road that it would insist upon the stipulation that direct cars be run from Everett square to Revere beach during the summer months in return for granting a petition to the road for permission to relay tracks on Chelsea street and Everett avenue. A conference is being arranged between the Boston & Northern officials and the city to see if it will not be possible to have a 5-cent fare between Everett and Melrose.

The project of the Everett board of aldermen was not known to J. Harvey White, the publicity representative of that road, when asked today. He said,

ATTORNEY WILLIAM COOLIDGE OPPOSES BOSTON & EASTERN

Counsel for Boston & Maine Railroad Is Heard at State House in Argument Against Proposed New Line From Beverly to This City.

Attorney William H. Coolidge, counsel for the Boston & Maine railroad, opposed the project of the Boston & Eastern electric railroad for a line between Beverly and Boston at the State House today, on the ground of its not being a good business proposition.

It amounted to taking returns from existing lines, he said, and giving them to a new one, with no resulting gain to the service and a detriment to companies now in existence and the investors in these companies. Mr. Coolidge in part said to the committee on metropolitan affairs:

"The Boston & Eastern was conceived by an engineer who interested some people enough to subscribe $250,000 when the total cost of the electric road will be $1,000,000.

"The commissions to whom the question of this tunnel was referred by the Legislature have unanimously asked this Legislature not to pass any act this year, but to let the whole matter go over until the final determination of the question of the tunnel between the North and South stations, and the question of electrification in the suburban district have been decided. Those questions involve $50,000,000 at least. They involve great study, and the amount is so enormous that haste will make waste."

PEABODY IS SUED FOR A HUGE SUM

LYNNFIELD, Mass.—The town of Lynnfield has brought suit against the town of Peabody for $1,500,000 for the use of the water in Suntaug lake, South Lynnfield. Peabody has been taking the lake for several years, and of late the lake has been drained to a low mark. Among the dozen or more abutters who are to aid the town in the suit are "Hap" Ward, the actor, and his Helen Marsh, a Lynn business woman. Only a few years ago Lynnfield went deep into its treasury to the extent of $10,000 and bought land around the lake to prevent Henry Sibley, a Chicago millionaire merchant, from acquiring it.

MAIL FRAUD CASE GOES OVER.

The trial of Patrick J. Cummings of Attleboro and Howard Dill of Philadelphia in the United States circuit court before Judge Lowell was put over till tomorrow after the jury had been impaneled today. The men are indicted on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

BOSTON & MAINE TRAFFIC DELAYED

A tieup on the Western division of the Boston & Maine railroad at East Somerville this morning from 6 to 9 o'clock caused considerable inconvenience to passengers, many of whom were obliged to take street cars to the city.

The office of the trainmaster of the terminal division reported that a light engine was off the rails; that the cause was unknown and that no one was injured. At 9:30 a. m. the wrecking train and crew were still at work.

The office of the trainmaster of the terminal division reported this noon that trains were running on regular schedule soon after 10 o'clock, but that the engine had not yet been placed upon the tracks. The cause will be determined later by investigation.

SCHOOLS OF UNITED STATES TO SHARE IN BOSTONIAN'S WORK

Edwin G. Cooley, Former Head of Chicago System, Prepares to Quit Business for Vocational Research.

GOING TO GERMANY

Relinquishes His Position as President of D. C. Heath Company to Make Contract With Chicago Club.

Information reached Boston this afternoon that Edwin G. Cooley, president of the school text-book firm of D. C. Heath & Co. of this city, is preparing to close his connection with the company to take up the study of the vocational school system of Germany as a special representative of the Chicago Commercial Club.

Mr. Cooley's report of his foreign investigations to the Chicago club, due in 12 months, will be of interest to every large city in America. Mr. Cooley was superintendent of the Chicago schools for many years and is acknowledged to be one of the foremost educators in the United States. He relinquished his charge of the Chicago school system about a year ago to accept the presidency of D. C. Heath & Co.

Plans for an exhaustive study of the industrial and commercial education scheme of the school system of Germany by Mr. Cooley, says the Chicago Record-Herald, have just culminated in the signing of a contract with the Chicago Commercial Club, by the terms of which he will spend a year abroad studying vocational education with a view to drafting a report which is intended by the club primarily for use by the Chicago board of education.

All expenses of this trip are to be borne by the club and Mr. Cooley is to be paid a regular salary for his services. The club hopes in this way to place at the disposal of the Chicago school board all the latest information in regard to industrial training and commercial instruction.

Mr. Cooley has severed his connection with D. C. Heath & Co. of Boston, school book publishers. His five-year contract with the company has been abrogated, his stock has been purchased by the company and he expects to leave its employ this week.

BOSTON LEATHER CONCERN IS SUED

The Lincoln National Hide and Skin Company of New York brought a bill in the superior court today against the Excel Leather Company of Boston, and various insurance companies, seeking to share in the proceeds of several policies of insurance standing in the name of the defendant leather company. The defendant leather company's tannery, which was damaged by fire, the loss being $13,000, contained skins shipped by the defendant and valued at $17,000, and the plaintiffs claim they are entitled to a share in the proceeds of the insurance. Judge Pierce issued a temporary injunction against payment of the policies.

COUNSEL FOR NORTH DAKOTA MAN BEGINS CLOSING ARGUMENT

Atty. Leslie A. Simpson, counsel for the Dakota claimant in the Russell will case, today began his closing argument before Judge George Lawton in the Mid-dex probate court beginning at 11 a. m., at the conclusion of the final plea of Atty. Robert Nason, counsel for the respondent.

Mr. Simpson in opening his argument sought to refute the points made in Mr. Nason's argument this morning. He said that the alleged intimacy between the Hon. Levi S. Gould of Melrose and Daniel Russell, Sr., was not close, especially during the years just previous to the departure of Daniel Blake Russell from home.

He argued that the claimant is a member of the Masonic order, which counsel for the respondent sought to disprove.

"The respondent has not brought forward any evidence which questions the veracity of the statements made on the witness stand by Frank Morton, formerly of Melrose, who declared that the claimant is Daniel Blake Russell," said Mr. Simpson.

In answer to Mr. Nason's claim that the slender, shy, retiring, pale-faced Daniel Blake Russell, as he is said to have appeared as a youth, could not have developed a frame like that of the claimant, or lead the wild and rough life which the claimant has led, Mr. Simpson

PRESIDENT BROWN PASSES AWAY

Hugh G. Brown, president of the Hotel & Railroad News Company, passed away at his home, 46 Powell street, Brookline, this morning. He was a native of Scotland. After leaving school Mr. Brown was employed in a ship chandlery establishment in his native town. He came to Boston in 1873 and for a time carried on a periodical business at 1903 Washington street. The Hotel & Railroad News Company was largely the outcome of the work of Mr. Brown and his brother James, who was associated with him in business.

"THE SOLDIER IN COLLEGE"

New plan to add 20,000 men to the U. S. Army.

FIRST LIEUTENANT JAMES J. MAYES, U. S. A., has formed a plan whereby the United States may have a standing army and at the same time give a college education to several thousand men each year. This plan calls for a reserve cadre corps of the United States, consisting of 20,000 enlisted men organized into 200 companies, the companies to be stationed at various educational institutions selected by the President. Along with the regular college work, certain courses designated by the secretary of war will be taught. By this plan, each year 5000 men would receive a college education at the expense of the government, and at the same time be ready to respond to a call to arms. The plan is to be submitted to Congress.—Yale News.

AUTHOR OF BOSTON COUNCIL BILL GIVES PURPOSES OF PLAN

March G. Bennett Issues a Pamphlet Describing the Workings of His Proposed Scheme for Cooperation.

IS ADVISORY ONLY

Explains That Measure, Reported Favorably, in No Way Provides for Annexation of Districts.

SCOPE OF PROPOSED COUNCIL.

The metropolitan Boston council is to meet in Boston city hall early in the year, and is to choose its own president.

It is to elect a secretary and such other officers as it chooses, and is to adopt rules. It is to examine all bills and reports that are submitted to the Legislature concerning metropolitan Boston, and to take such action upon them as it sees fit, communicating its views to the commissions, the Governor or the Legislature.

Its powers are purely advisory.

It cannot, because it has not the power, bring about annexation, or do any other acts which would seem alarming to the conservative elements of the community.

At first it would have authority to spend only $1000 in doing its business, and this could not be increased without legislative authority.

The scope and purposes of the metropolitan Boston council bill, which has been reported on favorably by the committee on metropolitan affairs of the Legislature, are set forth at length in a pamphlet published today by March G. Bennett, the author of the bill, and a Boston business man.

Mr. Bennett's bill, as he explains, does not provide for annexation, nor for interference with local government, but only for intelligent cooperation for the benefit of the whole community. He characterized metropolitan Boston as a federated city half-baked, and traces the history of the federation of the district as the metropolitan sewer district.

"The fact of federation was not acknowledged," he declares, "because the more progressive elements of the community were restrained by the conservatives, who wished to move slowly, and by the timid, who were fearful of the loss of the independence of their own little communities in the maelstrom of a 'Greater Boston' by annexation. Therefore, in order to reap the benefits of federation and yet evade its responsibilities and possible dangers in this direction the state was called upon to assume a new and peculiarly paternal relationship toward this collection of cities and towns (now numbering 39) unlike that hitherto borne toward any other subdivisions of the commonwealth, either county or municipal."

Of the formation of the metropolitan sewer district he says: "This was the first step in actual federation, but the name was carefully constructed so as to leave out the word Boston, and the cooperation of and between the city and town governments comprising the district which open and acknowledged federation would have produced and developed was lost. The commonwealth furnished the money to build the sewers, the commission built them under the acts of the Legislature, and were made responsible for money spent and work

CHIEF OF STATISTICS NAMES LONG LIST OF CENSUS CANVASSERS

Chief Charles F. Gettemy of the Massachusetts bureau of statistics, who has charge of the federal census in this state, today announces his enumerators and supervisors for the work, who will commence collecting information for the government April 15.

This district is the most populous of the 330 into which the country has been divided by the director of the census at Washington.

Chief Gettemy's personal staff comprises six expert special agents, all from Boston. Frank H. Brown, Francis O. Carlson and William G. Grundy of the bureau of statistics are the first on the list, while Elliott B. Hughes, Meyer Bloomfield and Cammack D. Relf are the others.

Mr. Hughes is a Harvard graduate of '08 and specialist in economics and statistics. Mr. Bloomfield is the head of the Civic Service House in the North End and familiar with the tenement house district and foreign elements in the population. Mr. Relf is an expert organizer of office work and to him will come the daily reports and clerical details of the census.

There will be 32 special agents, of whom as yet only 24 have been selected, as follows:

William S. Foster, 19 Marion street, East Boston.

PROPOSED BUILDING TRADE WAGE TARIFF REFUSED AT BERLIN

BERLIN—Delegates representing the Socialist Federation of Trades Unions, comprising 300,000 bricklayers, carpenters, masons, builders and laborers, unanimously rejected the proposed wages tariff which the master builders' union had drawn up. About 35,000 members of the Christian Trades Unions in the same branches have also decided without a dissenting vote to join in throwing out the employers' proposition.

The workers demand that the tariff shall be drawn up by an equal number of representatives of the workers and employers. The latter up to the present have declined such a method of reaching an agreement. The men express themselves as determined to remain firm. They have been holding for a considerable period for shorter hours and increased wages, pointing out the great rise in prices of necessities.

The employers appear equally firm. Their union will meet within a few days to take action relative to the workers' resolution. Should the demand of the men be refused, work will immediately cease.

PARSEVAL TRIAL OF BIG AEROPLANE

BLAU, Germany—The biggest aeroplane yet constructed, the invention of Major von Parseval, has had successful preliminary trials on the surface of Lake Plau. No attempt at a flight was made, but the motor and propeller were tested and they worked very satisfactorily.

The new flier is a monoplane with a four-cylinder motor of 120 horsepower. It carries 170 pounds of benzine and, it is calculated, will remain in the air for three hours. The breadth of the plane is 45½ feet, and the length of the machine from back to front is 45 feet. It is provided with torpedo-like floats, for descending on the water, and with wheels for land. Major von Parseval hopes to make his first flight this week.

FRENCH TROOPS TO REMAIN IN MOROCCO AND TRAIN NATIVES

(Special to The Monitor.)
PARIS—The report submitted to the Chamber by M. Paul Doumer, on the supplementary supplies required for the military operations in Morocco, included a statement as to the arrangements made between France and Morocco in which it is pointed out that, with regard to the Shawia region, it was impossible for the French troops to be withdrawn so long as the native authorities were not in a position to maintain law and order, and, indeed, it was right for France to insist on sound guarantees that her successful efforts to establish a condition of security and prosperity hitherto unknown in the country should not be nullified by the return to a state of anarchy which might result from the withdrawal of the troops at the present moment.

The Maghzen has agreed to organize a Moorish force under the command of, and instructed by, French officers, and the French troops will remain at their stations in the interior until the force to be levied is capable of carrying out the duties for which it is being formed.

As regards Casablanca, this town has always been considered as part of Moroccan territory, and the French government has therefore no intention of definitely occupying the place. The troops will accordingly be withdrawn as soon as it is clear that their presence is no longer necessary for the maintenance of order and as soon as the Maghzen has given satisfactory assurances that the expenses incurred by military operations will be refunded.

The principles laid before the French Chamber in November have been agreed to as far as the frontier regions are concerned, and a Moorish commissary is to be appointed and invested with the power necessary to enforce, in cooperation with the French commissary, the administrative reforms, and the formation of a Moroccan police force under French command and instructed by French officers.

Special arrangements will also be made to provide escorts for caravans and to establish proper and regular relations between the authorities on either side of the border.

PRIME MINISTER WELL RECEIVED IN QUEENSLAND

MELBOURNE—The reports of the tour which has just been concluded by the Hon. A. Deakin, prime minister of Queensland, before the elections, show that magnificent receptions were accorded to the statesman in every place where he spoke. The conspicuous feature of the campaign in every state is the absence of anything in the nature of an anti-imperial feeling, not only from the Ministerial Fusion party but also the Labor candidates or the opposition, both parties accepting with equal willingness such questions as the organization of naval and military defense in cooperation with the forces of the rest of the empire, preference to Great Britain, etc.

The general outlook in the commonwealth has perhaps never been more satisfactory than at the present moment. A magnificent harvest has just been gathered, while the fruit and butter exports and the wool clip have all been extremely good.

TURKISH MINISTERS FAVOR BALKAN CONFEDERATION?

(Special to The Monitor.)
CONSTANTINOPLE—Statements of an important not to say somewhat startling nature have been published in the Monitor Oriental. In them the minister of the interior, Talaat Bey, and the minister of finance, Javid Bey, are reported to have expressed their approval of the idea of Balkan confederation. Although the minister of the interior is unable to see how the project can be immediately realized, he heartily indorses the idea. The first necessity, he points out, would be to give up all ideas of the formation of a Great Bulgaria, and to afford no further assistance to the Bulgarian hands in Macedonia. In these circumstances the scheme could be worked out, since the idea is already favorably considered by Serbia and Montenegro.

The minister of finance, Javid Bey, declares that the renewal of the treaty of commerce with Bulgaria would be advantageous, as being a great step toward confederation, and it is his hope that similar treaties will shortly be signed with Roumania and Servia.

Owing to the projected railway between the Danube and the Adriatic Servia will be no longer economically dependent on Austria. Javid Bey points out further that Turkey looks for support from Russia, and he believes that a Balkan federation would join the Triple Entente and would so be in a position to guarantee peace, not only in the Balkans but in Europe.

It is not definitely stated that the above report is an authoritative statement of views expressed by the two ministers referred to, but they have been published as such in the contemporary referred to.

NIGERIAN RUMOR OF AMALGAMATION IS NOT SURPRISE

(Special to The Monitor.)
LONDON—The announcement of the proposed amalgamation of northern and southern Nigeria will cause little surprise to many people, for it has been publicly stated on more than one occasion during recent years by those well qualified to speak on the subject, that such an amalgamation must eventually take place, and that the British possessions in the Niger basin must sooner or later come under one administrative head. There are, however, some who consider that, owing to the different conditions prevailing in the two protectorates, the administration can be best carried on separately.

At present a sum of about $350,000 a year is paid to northern Nigeria by southern Nigeria, on account of duties on imports discharged at southern Nigerian ports for the northern protectorate, in addition to which northern Nigeria provides for the two protectorates, on the Niger. The interests of both protectorates are also involved in the development of a new system of Nigerian railways, so that the amalgamation of the two protectorates seems the most natural and normal outcome of the existing condition of affairs.

CITY DESIGNERS TO COMPETE FOR TOWN SITE PLANS

(Special to The Monitor.)
SYDNEY, N. S. W.—Competitive designs are being called for, in which city designers all over the world are free to compete, for the federal capital at Yass-Camberra in New South Wales. The competitions are to be open for 12 months. The minister, the Hon. G. W. Fuller, has not yet fixed the amount of the prize money to be offered, but it is reported that he is anxious that it should be a sum large enough to attract the best talent in the world. Panoramic views of the federal territory, together with details of its geological features, climate, etc., will be supplied in order to assist the competitors in getting out their designs.

TROOPS DISPERSE BAND OF NATIVES

BOMBAY—An affray occurred recently on the north-west frontier, or to be more accurate, 25 miles on the British side of the frontier. It was early in March that the village of Laki was found to be in the hands of a band of 32 men sent, with the purpose of pillaging the village, by the Mullah Powindah. The band of marauders was surrounded by a body of police, until the arrival of some regular troops consisting of cavalry and infantry which covered a distance of 48 miles in four hours. After a skirmish, the intruders pressed through the cordon surrounding them and were soon lost in the high crops.

COSTA RICA ELECTS PRESIDENT.
SAN JOSE, Costa Rica—At the most orderly election in the history of the country, President Ricardo Jimenez, Republican, was elected President of the republic for the term of 1910-1914 which begins on May 8.

Debate on the Hereditary Principle in House of Lords

(Special Correspondence of The Monitor.)
LONDON—The famous reply of General Camborne, from the center of the French guard, at Waterloo, was echoed in the determined "not content" of Lord Halsbury when the lord chancellor put the question in the House of Lords, in the terms of Lord Rosebery's resolution, "That the possession of a peerage should no longer of itself give the right to sit and vote in the House of Lords."

The lords had already passed Lord Rosebery's two previous resolutions, nemine contra dicente, and had so registered their opinion that a strong and efficient chamber was necessary to the well-being of the state, and that such a chamber could best be obtained by a reform in the constitution of the House of Lords. The third resolution, the complement of the two previous ones, almost went through with the same lack of opposition. The report had got about that it would not be reached till the next afternoon, and the "backwoodsmen" were not present in any numbers. Lord Rosebery, in moving the resolution, made it a preliminary question whether it would be for the convenience of the House to divide on the resolution that evening, or to adjourn the debate till the next day. Lord Lansdowne gave it as his opinion that the delay would meet the wishes of the great majority of the peers. To this Lord Newton totally dissented. The resolution, he drily remarked, would not be more palatable to the "backwoodsmen" a week hence than it was that evening, while the general election might overtake them at any moment, and prevent them registering their decision. Lord Halsbury thought an adjournment would be a good thing.

An unlimited adjournment, interjected Lord Rosebery, would probably suit the ex-lord chancellor best, and Lord Halsbury smiled his acquiescence. At length Lord Cromer proposed that the House should divide upon the question. The motion for the adjournment was defeated by 87 to 80 votes.

Even then it appeared as if there would be no debate. After a long pause, the chairman was on the point of putting the resolution when Lord Ripley got up and opened the debate. He explained that any measure of reform would probably exclude him from belonging to the House of necessity, but that, so strongly did he feel the necessity of bringing fresh air into the House, he was willing to take his chance of that. Such an argument did not appeal to Lord Killanin in any way. He rose to move an amendment limiting the reform to those who succeeded to the peerage in the future. This brought Lord Rosebery to his feet. He absolutely declined to support any amendment which should seem even to suggest such a thing as vested interests. "We sit here," he said, "for the good of the country, and not as a going concern with a good will." In the end Lord Killanin withdrew his amendment, and the debate was adjourned till the next evening.

The debate was reopened by Lord Hylton who announced that though he would probably be among the first swept away, he was convinced that the reform was necessary and was determined to vote for it. Peer after peer rose to support this view, which was combated in the most vigorous and determined way by Lord Halsbury. The country, he declared, was living politically on caricatures and slang phrases. The debate in which he was engaged at that moment was, he insisted, not a real debate, but a mere electioneering debate, and so he went on, making it plain in every sentence that he was opposed to any alteration in the constitution of the House. Lord Lansdowne's contribution to the debate was waited with interest. When he rose he made it perfectly plain that if he was not an enthusiastic supporter of the resolution he regarded something of the sort as absolutely inevitable. He did not admit, he said, that the resolution involved anything in the nature of a crusade against the Upper House or the hereditary principle, but some interference with that principle was a necessity to any scheme of reform. For this reason, he declared, he would vote without hesitation for the motion.

When the lord chancellor rose to put the motion, it was loudly challenged by Lord Halsbury. The House was at once cleared for the division, and, as the enormous majority passed towards one door, and the little stream of non-contents towards the other, it was evident what the result would be. The Prince of Wales left his place in the House without voting. The tellers for the resolution were Lord Rosebery and Lord St. Aldwyn, the one a late prime minister, the other, better known as Sir Michael Hicks Beach, once leader of the House of Commons and chancellor of the exchequer. The tellers for the "noes" were Lord Halsbury and Lord Venn, the two most determined opponents of the "no surrender" element in the House. In a few seconds, the opposition had streamed through the door of the division lobby back to their places, but it was long before the last of the "contents" passed the white wands of the tellers. When the figures were announced, it was found that 175 peers had voted for the resolution and 17 against.

The first step in a great constitutional change had been taken.

GOVERNMENT AIDS STREET BUILDING

(Special to The Monitor.)
ANCON, Canal Zone—The division of public works is engaged in repairing the thoroughfare in the city of Panama, formerly known as the old La Boca road, which, under the renaming of the streets, became a continuation of B street. The section undergoing improvement extends from the intersection with the Ancon boulevard to the Canal Zone boundary. The repairs consist principally of loosening up the old macadam and giving the surface a new layer two or three inches thick of crushed rock and broken brick. The broken brick is procured from a large pile which accumulated in the old municipal division's storage yard in Panama when the street paving operations were in progress in 1905.

An extension of Las Salinas road to the Juan Diaz river has been undertaken by the Panama government. It will be of the same width and practically of the same construction as the section already built.

BRITISH CHILDREN OF POETS BANQUET

LONDON—A unique banquet at which Lord Coleridge presided was held in London Tuesday night, the gathering being composed of 200 descendants of British poets. The occasion was the anniversary of the birth of Algeon Charles Swinburne, and the diners included the Duke of Norfolk, Lord Lytton, Lady Lindsay, Lady Shelley and Helen Mathers (Mrs. Henry Reeves). There were many interesting speeches and recitations.

CANADIAN ROAD TO BUILD A CITY

Railway Company Acquires Over Two Thousand Acres of Land on Fraser River for New Townsite.

(Special to The Monitor.)
VANCOUVER, B. C.—It is reported that the Canadian Northern Railway Company has acquired upward of 2000 acres of land on the Fraser River opposite New Westminster, and that it is the intention to convert the same into a townsite where its shops for the Pacific coast section will be located.

It is said that the purpose of the company is to follow the model established by the American steel trust at Gary, Ind. It is proposed to begin this spring to clear the site, open streets, and build wharves and warehouses, so that everything will be ready for operation on the completion of the road.

WIRELESS HELP TO BOATS.

(Special to The Monitor.)
LONDON—Two British destroyers were maneuvering a few days ago in the neighborhood of Sicily, when they called. Assistance was immediately asked for by means of wireless telegraphy, whereupon the British cruiser Bacchante and the Aboukir immediately proceeded to the spot with the result that the two destroyers were safely escorted into harbor, where they were temporarily repaired before proceeding to Malta.

GENERAL REINSTATED.

(Special to The Monitor.)
PARIS—General d'Amade, who, it will be remembered, was temporarily relieved last autumn of the command of the ninth division at Orleans, owing to his having expressed his views too freely to a newspaper correspondent on the subject of the general's policy in Morocco, has been reinstated. The reappointment of the general to his old post has been received with universal satisfaction.

FRENCH BILL FOR NEW BATTLESHIPS

(Special to The Monitor.)
PARIS—A bill, as a provisional measure, has been distributed among the members of the chamber authorizing the immediate construction of two battle ships of 23,467 tons in state dockyards. The dimensions of these battleships are to be 167 meters by 27 meters and the vessels are to be provided with steam turbines and Belleville or Niclausse boilers.

It is said that they will have a speed of 20 knots, while their range of action will be 760 miles, or, if an extra supply of coal is stored in the bunkers, 2280 miles. The armament to be carried will include four submerged torpedo tubes, 12 30-centimeter guns, 22 14-centimeter guns, four 47-millimeter guns.

The bill is merely a provisional measure adopted by the government pending the realization of the complete program of naval construction proposed by the minister of marine, Admiral Boue de Lapeyriere some few weeks ago.

The bill, if adopted, will, the ministers of marine and finance point out, not prejudice in any way the decision of Parliament with regard to the proposed naval program. The minister of marine declares that the new vessels will be the most formidable battleships in the world.

GIVE AIRSHIPS TO FRANCE.

(Special to The Monitor.)
PARIS—A decree has been submitted to the President of the republic for signature, accepting the balloons and aeroplanes offered to the state by the Temps on behalf of its subscribers, and by M. Koehlin. It appears that two dirigible balloons and four aeroplanes are to be purchased with the Temps fund. The aeroplane offered by M. Koehlin is one of his own construction.

ITALY IS FRIENDLY TOWARD GERMANY, SAYS STATESMAN

(Special to The Monitor.)
ROME—In discussing the question of the visit of Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German chancellor, to Rome, a leading statesman said to a representative of the Neue Freie Presse that Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg probably had no difficulty in convincing himself of the straightforward and loyal friendship entertained by Italy toward Germany. Italy desires nothing and will do nothing that might interfere with the maintenance of peaceful relations. If the politics of the world took their tone from Rome, mankind would be standing on the threshold of a new and truly industrial and peaceful future.

It was no longer necessary to prove that the Italian government agreed entirely with the German policy of maintaining an equal balance of power in Europe, for that had been a well-known fact for many years. The good, indeed the exceptionally good relations between Italy and Germany had been strengthened in such a manner since the slight misunderstanding which occurred over the Algeiras question, that nothing more remained to be done.

HONOR BRITISH AMBASSADOR.

ROME—Sir Rennell Rodd, the British ambassador, has been elected as an honorary member of the Royal Academy of Fine Arts, known as the Academy of St. Luke. There are very few foreign members of the academy, so that the compliment paid to the minister is a high tribute to the interest he has taken in Italian art.

CHAMPION DANIELS THE ONLY EASTERN SWIMMING ENTRANT

Will Try to Defend His Present Title at 100 Yards in Contest at Chicago This Evening.

MAY LOWER RECORD

CHICAGO—The opening event of the national aquatic championships of the Amateur Athletic Union will be held this evening in the pool of the Illinois Athletic Club city. It will be the 100-yard swim, and indications point to some very fast time being made, as the fastest men in the country, including champion C. M. Daniels of the New York Athletic Club will take part. While it is again rumored that a man has been found to beat Daniels, there seems little chance of the champion losing his title. In fact, his recent performances seem to indicate that if he meets with real competition it is not beyond him to lower the present world's record of 55.2 seconds, held by himself. Harry Heber of the Illinois Athletic Club, the Central Amateur Athletic Union 100-yard champion, and Kenneth Huzzagh of the Chicago Athletic Association should be the most formidable rivals of Daniels.

Westerners are picking Huzzagh to win the 50-yard race, which will be held tomorrow in the pool of the Chicago Athletic Association, thanks to his recent record of 19.2 seconds for 40 yards, which Daniels could not lower in a recent trial. Perry McGilivray also is being talked of as a worthy rival for Daniels.

The Chicago Athletic Association team looks best for the water polo championship, despite the confidence felt by the teams of the Missouri Athletic Club of St. Louis, and of the Illinois Athletic Club. There will be some fierce battles when these three rivals come together.

The fancy diving championship, off a low board, is conceded to rest between Frank Bornemann of the Chicago Athletic Association, the present indoor champion, and his clubmate, George Gaidrick. While the latter has a big following, critics believe that at his best Bornemann should take the title.

While Daniels will be the only easterner to compete in the championships, considerable interest centers in the meets because of the unusually big entry list and the high standard of the entries.

TWO FRESHMAN STARS AT BROWN

John Frank and H. M. Rosenberg Are Expected to Capture Many Points in Track Meets.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The Brown track men are fast getting into shape for the meets to come shortly, and from present prospects the Brunonians will give their opponents a hard tussle for the leading places in a number of events. The cinder track at Andrews field is getting hard use every day now, the entire squad taking regular afternoon practice, coached by Trainer Charles Huggins and Captain Hartigan.

The candidates for the weight events have shown up particularly well, and John Frank, who comes from New York, stands well toward the front as the individual star in that department of athletics. He is a member of the I. A. A. C. of New York, and was trained in the hammer throw by Martin J. Sheridan, one of the foremost hammer men in the country. Frank is a freshman, and although he is not looked upon as a point-winner this season, in the coming years he is regarded as a strong factor.

In the eight-pound shotput Frank excels. He has in practice hurled the shot 65 ft. 7 in., this mark being but two feet behind the world's record. In the 16-pound shotput he has established a mark of 43 ft. 11 in. in competition, and should be duplicate his feat this season he will probably win the New England intercollegiate championship.

Although he has been throwing the discus but a few months, in practice he has already made a mark of 120 ft. 11 in., and in this event, as well, he is looked upon as a point-winner. He has also thrown the 12-pound shot 51 ft. 9 in. One other event will be on his schedule, the broad jump. In this he has jumped 20 ft. 10 1/2 in. Frank has won 11 firsts, 7 seconds and 3 third places in the 25 meets in which he has competed.

Rosenberg, a clubmate of Frank, and a freshman, is showing well in the high jump event and in the weights. His highest mark in competition is 5 ft. 10 in., but in practice at Andrews field he has bettered that record. Altogether, another jumper, who comes from Ohio, and who is also a freshman, has made a broad jump of 21 ft. and a high jump of 5 ft. 10 in.

Kratz, who is a shot putter, Walcott, Moore, Raquet and Aspinwall will make up the weight men for Brown, and the combination is considered a strong one. This bunch will most likely be Brown's strongest, although several runners have shown good form in training.

Captain Hartigan, R. D. Mahoney, D. L. Mahoney and Young, the members of the relay team, will enter in the dashes, and all can give a good account of themselves. Marble, Young and Burgess will enter in the hurdles and H. S. Taber, Greene and Roper will be prominent in the long distance runs. Wallace, a freshman, is showing up well in the mile run and may be entered also.

Brown is not paying much attention to the pole vault, and there is no prospect that any entries will be made in that event. None of the athletes have shown a proficiency in that sport to warrant an entry, but the coaches are drilling the most likely men so that in years to come pole vaulting may be added to the strong features of the team.

Since the squad has been able to get out at Andrews field, it has improved rapidly, in general, and by the time the big meets come around Coach Huggins expects to have a very formidable squad to enter.

DARTMOUTH NINE DRILL IN ANDOVER

ANDOVER—The Dartmouth baseball squad, in charge of Coach Keady, will practice on the local field here during their vacation. They arrived here Tuesday. The party was composed of 14 men, but two more are expected to reach here today. Ryan, of last year's team, had to be left in Hanover. There was no practice Tuesday on account of work being done on the diamond, but a long batting practice was held with Gammons in the box. The latter is showing up well. Two pitchers of last year's team, Stevens and Eckstrom, are the men expected today.

The Phillips Academy squad of 40 men will report today to Coach Clough and Captain Burdette, who have already arrived in town. Practice games between the two teams will probably be held during the week the collegians are here, but the regular scheduled contest between the two nines on April 20 will prove the real contest. Dartmouth, however, will play several games with New England league teams before this contest.

HARVARD TRACK MEN START TABLE

The Harvard training table for the varsity track men was started Tuesday night with a list of 17 men. This number will be increased after the handicap games on April 14.

The following were taken to the table: P. C. Cummin '12, W. H. Fernald '12, R. C. Floyd '11, H. L. Goddard '10, H. Guild '10, R. J. Hodges '11, H. W. Kelley '11, S. Lawrence '10, J. K. Lewis '11, C. GARDNER AND MAYER EASILY WIN GAMES IN BILLIARD PLAY

Former Defeats M. D. Brown and Latter Contest With W. G. Douglas by Wide Margins.

TWO MATCHES TODAY

NEW YORK—J. F. Poggenburg of the Liederkranz Club is scheduled to meet W. E. Uppenhimer of the Columbia Club of Philadelphia this afternoon and W. G. Douglas of the New York A. C. will play M. D. Brown this evening in the 18.2 amateur billiard championship tournament which is being held at the Hamilton Club of Brooklyn.

Edward W. Gardner of the Montclair Athletic Club, a former holder of the national title, scored a decisive victory over Morris D. Brown in their match Tuesday by a score of 400 to 233. The afternoon match between Dr. Walter G. Douglas of the New York Athletic Club and Joseph Mayer of the Columbia Club of Philadelphia also furnished one-sided play, the latter winning by a total of 400 to 125.

It was the first time that Brown had ever competed in a big tournament. He held Gardner for the first few innings fairly well, but then began missing the easiest caroms, and then again executing a round-the-table shot or masse with great skill. The latter instances, however, while they brought forth applause, did not materially help his score, as his nursing game was poor.

In the match between Walter G. Douglas of the New York Athletic Club and Joseph Mayer of the Columbia Club of Philadelphia the element of contest was all but eliminated. Mayer had an easy victory. If, however, a close match was not forthcoming the brilliant one work of the Philadelphia, who was third in last season's tournament after the playoff of a triple tie for second position between Conklin, Mayer and Jackson, more than made up for the lack in any other particular. Aside from the fact that his average of 11.4-36 was of high station for an amateur tournament, Mayer displayed that close nursing of the ivory which followed along the style of play by the professionals.

It was by far the best play that has been seen in the present tournament. The summary: Joseph Mayer—0, 12, 1, 5, 2, 32, 8, 1, 0, 49, 2, 5, 3, 6, 0, 6, 0, 6, 2, 31, 1, 0, 8, 58, 9, 2, 12, 0, 3, 10, 14, 1, 27, 17, 36, 0, 12, Total, 400. W. G. Douglas—0, 0, 18, 4, 1, 3, 7, 0, 6, 4, 3, 0, 2, 2, 2, 3, 7, 0, 10, 8, 1, 0, 10, 9, 1, 0, 1, 0, 6, 0, 1, Total, 125. High runs, 18, 10, 10 and 9. Average, 3.17-36. E. W. Gardner—3, 0, 4, 18, 8, 1, 20, 0, 11, 0, 8, 17, 1, 2, 12, 17, 0, 1, 1, 5, 40, 8, 0, 0, 9, 7, 2, 45, 0, 21, 3, 16, 2, 3, 1, 5, 1, 11, 6, 4, Total, 400. High runs, 22, 40, 20. Average, 9.13-43.

M. D. Brown—1, 0, 1, 2, 22, 0, 26, 4, 2, 2, 7, 7, 2, 14, 2, 11, 0, 0, 4, 11, 2, 0, 0, 1, 1, 16, 20, 2, 22, 11, 8, 12, 4, 0, 6, 0, 6, 0, 0, Total, 233. High runs, 26, 22, 22, 20. Average, 5.25-42.

Lawless Passes Off Conditions. H. P. Lawless, the star Harvard freshman mile runner who was put on probation after the mid-year examinations, was placed in good standing this afternoon and will be eligible for the team.

REPORT BOSTON AND N. Y. DEAL. NORFOLK, VA.—It is reported that Manager John J. McGraw may make another deal with Manager Fred Lake of Boston. The deal will be made before the New York Nationals leave here, says the report. Manager McGraw has a number of pitchers he is not likely to use, and as he must soon cut his squad he will ask Lake to put in his bid for players now. Lake has his eye on several of the New York men, and will make his selection before waivers are asked. It will simply be a case of selling the extra men.

LAWLESS PASSES OFF CONDITIONS

CHANGES IN CORNELL CREW. ITHACA, N. Y.—Distler, who led last year's freshman crew, took a seat in the Cornell varsity eight here Tuesday. He exchanged places with Wiechers, the plucky youth who was kept out of rowing last year, but who strove valiantly for the varsity place this year. Wakeley replaced Beyer in the big boat also. Changes were made in the junior eight with O'Connor and Stimson rowing there and Ferguson and Johnston going to the junior four.

SECOND CONTEST A TIE.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—A tie score of 4 to 4 ended the second game of the series here Tuesday with the Vermont team. The game was called at the end of the tenth inning on account of darkness. Harry Vorhies singled in the eighth and Captain McCleary's three-base hit in the ninth tied the score. The fielding of Wordman, McCleary and Haddow and the pitching of Lynch, Haines and Klepper were features of the game.

HANDSOME BASEBALL PASSES. CHICAGO—The American baseball league has issued annual passes to President Taft and Vice-President Sherman. The passes were mailed to President Noyes of the Washington club, who will present them in behalf of the league. The books were handsomely bound in alligator, bearing a solid gold monogram. The pass cards were inscribed in gold letters.

NATIONAL SQUAD SHOWS UP BETTER

Boston Club Plays University of Tennessee at Knoxville Today Defeated Chattanooga in Close Contest.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—The Boston Nationals arrived here today, where they will play a game with the University of Tennessee nine. The squad was complete with the exception of Becker, who had gone to join the New York Nationals.

The Boston nine defeated the Chattanooga team again Tuesday in a well played game by the score of 2 to 1. A good deal of improvement was shown by the Boston team, and, although the score was closer than that of the day before, the form of the men was much more like that of a major league team. Manager Dobbs' men played excellent ball during the contest, and only made one excusable error. The visiting nine made nine hits while the locals only registered three.

McLaurin, the fast left fielder for the Chattanooga team, played in the right field, and saved the home team from a shut-out in the ninth inning.

Sweeney, Beck and Raden, from Boston, featured during the contest. Dobbs was the only man who stole second base on Raden during the game. The first score was made in the fourth by Boston, while the locals were unable to record a run until the ninth. The score:

FAST SKATERS FOR ICE RACES

Racing will be one of the many features of the ice carnival to be held next Monday afternoon and evening at the Boston Arena. In the afternoon the juniors will be catered to, races of various kinds having been arranged especially for the children.

In the evening the program will open at 8 o'clock with a 220-yard dash for amateurs, entries for which will close Monday noon at the Arena. This will be followed by a quarter-mile dash against time by William H. Merritt. J. R. Jones will give an exhibition of backward skating at 440 yards against time.

The big racing event of the evening will be a one-mile special, open to all amateurs. With all of the best skaters hereabouts competing, this event should bring out some very fast time. Among those already entered are Frank P. Danahy, one and three mile New England champion; E. J. Morgan, James Kennedy, D. Danahy and J. R. Jones.

AMERICAN NINE PROVES SUPERIOR

PHILADELPHIA—The Philadelphia American league team was victorious here Tuesday over the local National league club at Shibe park, the score being 11 to 0. The series between the two clubs now stands two victories to one in favor of the Nationals. Plank, for the Americans, was in excellent form, allowing three hits in the six innings he pitched. Only one National leaguer got to second base in the six innings. The Nationals' pitchers were batted hard and were given poor support.

T.A. HAVEMEYER WINS FROM W.H.T. HUHN IN A FOUR SET MATCH

Meets Joshua Crane Today for Place in the Semi-Final Round at Court Tennis in New York.

PLAY TWO GAMES

NEW YORK—Payne Whitney of New York will meet Dr. J. A. Miskey of Philadelphia at 1 o'clock this afternoon in the third match and Joshua Crane of Boston will play T. A. Havemeyer of New York at 2:30 p. m. in the fourth match of the annual championship court tennis tournament for the 1910 title, the two winners meeting tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the semi-final round.

T. A. Havemeyer won his opening match in the tourney Tuesday by defeating W. H. T. Huhn of Philadelphia in a fast four set match, 6-3, 6-5, 6-8, 8-6, or 26 points to 22. Although defeated, Huhn made a great stand, contesting every point with keen determination.

Floor work prevailed most of the time, and Havemeyer scored only 9 by the dedans, 5 by the grille and 3 in the winning gallery. Huhn found the dedans 5 times, the winning gallery twice and the grille once. Eighteen winning openings were credited to Havemeyer as against eight for the Philadelphia.

Havemeyer, who allowed his opponent only three games in the first set, won out by better placing. In the second set matters were different, and had it not been for a misunderstanding on the part of Huhn at a critical stage he might have won. It was in the last game of this set that Havemeyer made a return that went over the stanchion, but did not touch the walls, and Huhn thought it was out of court, which is the Philadelphia rule. Consequently he caught the ball with his hand as it fell. This made the score 30-15; otherwise it would have marked a chase and Huhn would still have been a contender.

With an advantage of 5 to 2 in the third set, Havemeyer apparently eased up. When he tried to gather in the decisive points the local player found it impossible to shake off the sturdy Quaker, who finally won the set at 8-6.

Havemeyer changed to a slow side wall service in the latter part of the fourth set and the sudden shift apparently baffled the other. Huhn, who has something of a reputation at polo, is master of an effective backhand stroke to the court, but he lacked the other's accuracy of placing.

RATIONAL GOLF

By Jason Rogers. That the new national golf course at Shinnecock hills is going to be well worth all the money and trouble expended in its production is indicated by an article in Golf Illustrated by John Sutherland, secretary of the Royal Darnoch Golf Club, who recently made a tour of some of the leading courses.

"In view of the near opening of the new national golf course of America, a short sketch will be interesting. I spent a day there under the auspices of Charles B. Macdonald, to whom the inception of the scheme is due, and had an opportunity of thoroughly inspecting the course.

"Myopia and Garden City were far and away the best of the American courses that I visited during my recent tour in the states; both are very fine indeed. I am expressing what I feel and believe.

AMERICANS LEAVE FOR NASHVILLE

Boston Nine Plays Memphis Team Today in an Effort to Repeat Tuesday's 2 to 0 Victory.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—The Boston American baseball squad will play a game here today with the local team before leaving for Nashville. In the game Tuesday the Boston players defeated the home team by the score of 2 to 0.

The contest was close and the visitors had to play fast in order to win. Each of the three pitchers that Memphis used had a different style and the Boston men had to battle hard to find them. No score was made until the sixth inning, when Boston secured one run, followed by another in the eighth.

The pitching of Hall for Boston was a feature of the contest. He struck out eight men in five innings, two in each of the last three.

Some good fielding was done by the Boston players, while the local nine did not appear very strong with the exception of the pitchers. The success of the team is very pleasing to Manager Donovan and the entire squad is confident of winning the contest this afternoon. The score:

ROOSEVELTS ALONE TO SPEND WEEK ON HONEYMOON ROUTE

Gifford Pinchot at Porto Maurizio, but he made it plain today that neither he nor Mr. Pinchot would have anything to say after their meeting and that the correspondents would not miss anything by not being present.

"I certainly hope that you will respect my wishes in the matter of giving no publicity to my movements until we arrive at Genoa," the colonel said to the correspondents. "I can promise you in return that you won't miss any news, for there is not going to be any news in my movements for the next few days."

This morning Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt went shopping, spending most of their time in shops where antiques were for sale.

At noon the colonel received Baron Fava, formerly Italian ambassador at Washington, and later had as his guest at luncheon Prof. Guglielmo Ferrero, the Italian historian, whose acquaintance with Mr. Roosevelt dates back several years.

The American embassy was visited this afternoon, where Mrs. Leishman, wife of the American ambassador, gave a tea for Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel, to which a number of prominent women were invited.

Mayor Nathan gave a formal 5 o'clock tea in honor of the Roosevelts. Tonight the colonel and his family will be the guests of honor at a dinner tendered by the municipality, which will probably be one of the most noteworthy functions yet arranged for them. They will go immediately from this dinner to the railway station and take a train for Spezia.

SENATORS RESENT SPEECH ON GRAFT

TRENTON, N. J.—The speech of Governor Fort at the dinner of the New York-New Jersey Real Estate Exchange in New York last Saturday night, in which he roundly condemned legislative graft and undue influence, has stirred up the members of the New Jersey Senate. In executive session Tuesday they appointed a committee to consider the speech and report back to the Senate what recommendation it might agree upon.

The Governor was quoted in his speech as severely denouncing corrupt methods in connection with legislation, and said laws should be passed to compel lobbyists to be registered. The Governor also deplored the domination of corporation influence in the matter of legislation and made references to Washington, Albany and Trenton.

The decision to appoint the committee was reached after one of the most strenuous executive sessions in the history of the Legislature, during which invectives strong in tone were hurled at the Governor, for what the senators asserted was a reflection on their good name and character.

The first of these executive sessions continued behind closed doors until 1:30 o'clock in the morning. In spite of the secrecy of proceedings, enough was learned to show that the members of the upper house had been wrought up to a high pitch of excitement by the Governor's remarks.

CUSTOMS RULES FOR TRAVELERS

WASHINGTON—In construing the law admitting to free entry household effects, the treasury department has made some rulings of general interest:

Horses, carriages, sleighs, harness and saddles, automobiles, guns, canoes, boats and similar articles are not entitled to free entry as household effects, nor are articles used abroad in business pursuits, such as office safes and office furniture.

Material for table cloths, napkins, curtains not made up into such articles are not household effects.

NEW YORK—"Spring," by Sir L. Alma Tadema, was sold for $22,000 to Henry Reinhardt at the first evening's sale of valuable paintings collected by Charles T. Yerkes, in Mendelssohn hall, Tuesday night. It was the highest price of the evening, when $162,225 was paid for 40 pictures. The sale was conducted by Thomas E. Kirby.

done only to the Governor, without any direct or even advisory authority by the city or town officials.

"They have spent millions upon millions in this way—they and the other boards upward of $80,000,000—which the cities and towns have paid and are paying to the last cent, and no city or town has had a word to say about the appropriation of the spending, except through its representatives and senators. These representatives and senators are not the financial or executive representatives of their municipalities. They frequently represent a number of different municipalities.

"They therefore cannot expect to charge themselves with the financial responsibilities of their districts except in a general and impartial way. They frequently belong to different political parties from the town executives and do not work harmoniously with them. The mayors and selectmen—the men who hold the purses and are responsible for the money spent—have nothing to say about the metropolitan appropriations, unless they volunteer their advice to a legislative committee or a commission. The representatives and senators, it may be thought, should be able to prevent extravagant appropriations, or to regulate undesirable ones, but it must be remembered that the run from the metropolitan district comprise only two fifths of the Legislature.

"Only the character of the commissioners appointed," he continues, "and the care of the governors have prevented the metropolitan expenditures from running very much higher than the enormous sum already spent. But the best of commissioners and the best of governors cannot make up for that loss of cooperation of the communities themselves, with the state and with each other, which this federation of interests made possible and, indeed, made absolutely necessary for the most intelligent and economical and far-reaching results."

"Such cooperation," he says, "can be brought about very simply and easily. It can be done without startling the conservative or frightening the timid. It is only necessary to sanely acknowledge that we have already federated, and to organize the merest shell of a federated advisory body to educate us—and ourselves—as to past accomplishments of federation and to advise with us—and ourselves—as how best to take advantage of the situation as it stands, and to protect our rights and develop our progress in the future. That body already exists in an unorganized state, and needs but an enabling act, or a compelling act, to make it effective. This act is proposed in the bill to create the metropolitan Boston council.

"The title proposed acknowledges the federation, but goes not a whit farther in federation than we now stand. The council is to consist of one representative from each one of the towns and cities in the metropolitan sewer, water and park districts—39 in all—and that representative is to be the mayor in the case of the cities, and the chairman of the board of selectmen in the case of the towns."

pointed out the case of one of the most prominent men in the world who at the age of 23, a slight, spectacled youth, left his home in New York, went to the same part of Dakota in which the claimant has lived and developed a much sturdier frame than that of the claimant.

Referring to the testimony of Mrs. Myron Russell that the claimant is the man who hired out to her husband under the name of James Rousseau 24 years ago, Mr. Simpson pointed out that Mrs. Russell, according to her testimony, had seen the hired man for only a little while each day during a period of not over five weeks, and for a short while four years later. Mr. Simpson argued that with such superficial knowledge of the hired man and after a lapse of so many years she is not in a position to testify correctly as to whether the claimant is or is not that hired man.

Mr. Simpson asserted that the photograph of Daniel Blake Russell taken over a quarter of a century ago refutes the testimony of William Spinney as to Daniel Blake Russell having ears with the lobe missing.

Mr. Nason, counsel for the respondent, brought his closing argument to an end at 10:35 a. m., whereupon Judge Lawton granted a recess of 15 minutes.

Mr. Nason this morning sought to show that a comparison of the photographs of Daniel Blake Russell as a youth and those of the claimant shows distinctly that the claimant is not Daniel Blake Russell.

The scar on the claimant's left leg shows no sign of stitches having been taken, as was the case with the scar on the leg of Daniel Blake Russell, according to the testimony of William C. Russell given on the witness stand, said Mr. Nason.

The assertions of many Melrose people that the claimant is Daniel Blake Rus-

BERKSHIRE RAILWAY TRUSTEE REPLIES AT STATE HOUSE TODAY

Bentley W. Warren, trustee of the Berkshire Railway Company, made answer today before the committee on railroads at the State House to those who are opposing the proposition of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad acquiring the stock of the Berkshire Company. He told of the relations between the N. Y., N. H. & H., and the trolley lines in western Massachusetts, and the New England Investment Securities Company, now holding the majority of stock in these companies.

These relations grew out of an order of the supreme court of the state, relating to the New Haven company, disposing of its trolley lines.

Mr. Warren said that the situation was this: "Is it for the public's interest that the proposed legislation should be enacted? It is a new proposition in this state that the public must forego the enjoyment of admitted benefits, because some corporation has, either willfully or innocently, mistaken its legal rights, and has acted beyond its corporate powers."

Mr. Warren stated that under the decision of the supreme court the New Haven road had no right to own street railways in the state. This decision was rendered under the law then in existence.

It is within the power of the Legislature, he said, to make it lawful, and this is the intent of the bill presented. No one, he said, should question the ability of the road to extend the street railways if it is allowed to do so. It is willing to spend $2,000,000, which Mr. Warren said he believed was evidence enough that it believed it a profitable enterprise.

President Treadway of the Senate spoke in favor of the bill. Edward W. Curtiss of Sheffield closed the argument in opposition. Representative Dickson of Pittsfield spoke in favor.

under consideration by the club for several weeks. When plans for the commercial high school were abandoned it began casting around for some other method of making industrial education a live subject with the Chicago board of education. This resulted in the negotiations with Mr. Cooley.

"I expect to leave this country some time in July," Mr. Cooley states, "and will go direct to Germany. Industrial training and commercial education have been developed to a higher degree there than in probably any other country and I expect to find the best material for study there. I shall visit other countries, however, and select the best features of their work for my report."

"Another subject to which I shall pay particular attention is the training of teachers. Germany has some exceptionally good training schools."

"This is something that will be of especial interest to me, and I am glad to be able to get out of business and back into educational work. I was in school work for 30 years, and although I was glad to get out of it I am now glad to get back in."

Clayton Mark, a member of the committee which conducted the negotiations with Mr. Cooley, says the club has not definitely decided what to do with his report.

"It depends a good deal on the character of the report," he said. "We plan, of course, to give the Chicago schools the benefit of anything he may learn which is in advance of our ideas. We do not intend to confine it to Chicago schools, however, but will be glad to furnish his report to any city where industrial training and commercial education are subjects of interest."

Inquiry today at Mr. Cooley's business headquarters with D. C. Heath & Co., publishers, brought the information that he had not been there since last Friday, but that he was expected back in a few days.

MR. FOSS TO AID NEW YORK FIGHT

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Representative Eugene N. He sent word today to the Democratic general committee that he would be glad to come here and speak in behalf of James S. Havens.

sell has no weight in the case, Mr. Nason said, as practically all of their knowledge is based upon a hazy remembrance of Daniel Blake Russell as a youth.

In closing, Mr. Nason declared that the burden of proof is on the claimant, and challenged Counsel Simpson to prove a single point at law that would help the claimant to bear it.

PLACES ON HINGHAM RIVER WILL OBJECT TO BUILDING BRIDGE

If the war or navy department wants to widen or have built a new bridge at the site of the present Lincoln street structure in Hingham, the officials of Quincy, Hingham and Weymouth have no objection, but if the citizens of those places must bear the expense it will be another question. The state Legislature in this case will be asked to act.

This is the substance of the attitude of the trustees who have charge of the bridge and who are to appear before Lieut.-Col. Edward Burr, local army engineer, who will hold a public hearing on this bridge question in the Federal building Friday morning.

That the war department intends to have a new bridge in place of the present structure, is not denied, but instead of there being two bridges as at present, the proposition is to have one modern structure, in which the Old Colony Street Railway Company will share part of the expense. Now there is a highway and a street railway bridge.

Atty. J. W. McInney, city solicitor of Quincy, and possibly Mayor T. A. Shea, will represent Quincy at the hearing. Chairman Walter Hersey of the Hingham board of selectmen and Atty. J. L. Burdett will represent Hingham. Chairman Edward Hunt of the board of Weymouth selectmen, Secretary B. Hawes of the board and Atty. Albert L. Wilton will appear for Weymouth. Atty. Samuel H. Pillsbury will look after the Old Colony street railway interests.

The navy wants the structure widened to at least a 50-foot draw, as it is proposed to have considerable navigation through the Weymouth bay river, and has petitioned the war department for the increased width.

DEMOCRAT SNUBBED BY SPEAKER CANNON IGNORING HIS ORDER

WASHINGTON—"Calendar Wednesday" in the House today started off with a hot parliamentary squabble between Speaker Cannon and Representative Henry (Dem., Tex.).

The chaplain had concluded his prayer and the journal of Tuesday's proceedings was about to be read, when Mr. Henry arose with a "parliamentary inquiry." He read from the rules the provision that "the speaker shall take the chair on every legislative day . . . immediately call the members to order and on the appearance of a quorum cause the journal to be read."

Mr. Henry demanded the application of the rule and indicated that there were only a score or more of members present. Speaker Cannon refused to consider the point, declaring that it was in the power of any member, the speaker as well as any other, to make the point of a quorum. "Most business in the House," he said, "is conducted in the absence of a quorum. The practice of the House has been for the speaker to consider a quorum present until there was specific objection made. A quorum is always constructively present."

And Mr. Cannon brought his gavel down with a bang, directing the clerk to proceed with the reading of the journal.

"Does the chair refuse to rule?" yelled Mr. Henry.

Bang! bang! went the speaker's gavel. "The chair will not recognize the gentleman from Texas," he yelled.

Mr. Henry was still belligerent and continued yelling for recognition above the voice of the clerk.

"The gentleman will be in order," Mr. Cannon finally shouted.

"The chair does not rule," he announced, punctuating each word with a bang of the gavel.

"But, Mr. Speaker—" insisted Mr. Henry at the top of his voice.

The clerk in the meantime had finished the journal.

"I make the point of no quorum," Mr. Henry shouted.

"I move a call of the House," added Representative Payne (Rep., N. Y.), and a roll call was thereupon ordered.

SOLDIERS' RELIEF REPORT IS MADE

The report of Commissioner John E. Gilman of the soldiers' relief department was today submitted to Councilman Matthew Hale, chairman of that committee. The report deals with the finance commission report, in which Commissioner Gilman was severely attacked. The document comprises a general denial of all allegations made in the commission report.

Mr. Gilman says it is true he has not been "professionally trained," but that his practical experience dates from 1878, when he entered the department of state charities from which he came to his present position. He tells of the system he adopted adequately to meet conditions. Mr. Gilman denies that a subcommittee of the former finance commission conducted a preliminary examination of his department and declares he would be glad to have the city council investigate it.

ARCHITECTS FAVOR FURTHER PLANTING OF TREES FOR CITY

The Boston Society of Architects through its secretary, Edwin J. Lewis, has sent to Mayor Fitzgerald resolutions embodying the recommendations of the society for the preservation and further planting of shade trees in the city proper.

The letter is based on the recommendation made to the society by Joseph J. Corbett asking that more money be appropriated for the work and that the city ordinances be revised so as to permit the recommendations to be adopted.

Resolved, that the shade trees in Boston's streets are an important and indispensable element in promoting the health, comfort, and attractiveness of the city; and that the systematic care of existing trees and the judicious planting of new ones should receive public support and approval; that the present street trees are not now receiving the care and attention which is necessary for their proper preservation and growth. It is therefore

Resolved, that the city ordinances relating to shade trees should be revised. And it is further

Resolved, that an effort should be made to secure an adequate annual appropriation by the city council for the care of shade trees. And it is further

Resolved, that only after action has been taken to provide for the care of existing trees should a general movement be undertaken to increase their number. Nevertheless, be it further

Resolved, that many streets in the older as well as the newer parts of Boston are in need of shade trees and that they should be planted as soon as there is reasonable assurance that they will receive proper care.

ARGUMENTS DUE IN GLOVER CASE

Arguments on alleged undue influence in the Glover will case in the probate court at East Cambridge, before Judge McIntire, will be heard Thursday morning, beginning at 9:30 o'clock.

Upon the opening of court Tuesday afternoon, Samuel D. Elmore, counsel for the Glover will, said that he should rest his case, as he did not believe his opponents had established a prima facie case of undue influence.

Judge McIntire said that he would allow the contestants the closing arguments unless Mr. Elmore objected. Mr. Elmore did object and Judge McIntire said he would not reverse the rule, which gives the proponents of the will the right to close.

Mr. Gove said he did not know whether the contestants would make their argument through one lawyer or whether each one of the three would argue.

RESUMING WORK AT PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA—Reports from the barge of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company indicate that some of the strikers are returning to work.

The strike leaders maintain that the company will be forced to reinstate all of the old men. The company, on the other hand, says the strike is over, so far as it is concerned, and that it has more than 16,000 men operating cars.

PRESIDENT DENIES GOVERNMENT WILL AID STEEL BOYCOTT

WASHINGTON—Declaring himself forcibly as opposed to the boycott as involved in the Bethlehem steel strike, President Taft today told a delegation of 50 business and professional men representing the borough of Bethlehem, Pa., that so long as the Bethlehem company turns out good work it will be given government contracts, despite the efforts of the strikers to the contrary.

The delegation, representing the industrial commission of Bethlehem, presented a resolution to the President deploring the efforts of the strikers to turn the government business away from the Bethlehem company. Members of the delegation say that representatives of the strikers are working among congressmen and departmental chiefs, claiming that the work of the company is of inferior quality.

After a speech by H. J. Meyers, who headed the delegation, a copy of the resolution was given to the President. Mr. Meyers said that the work on government contracts is being done by men of long experience and thoroughly competent in steel work.

In reply Mr. Taft said in part: "I am utterly opposed to the principle of the boycott. Every issue ought to be settled on its own merits. Without knowing anything of the facts, I say to you that if the Bethlehem company does not do good work it is for the government to find it out and act on it and to refuse its contracts on that ground, and not because it is concerned in a fight or in a controversy. Insofar as the public, or the government, or a part of the public is interested in the controversy between the employees and the company, that is to be determined on the merits of that controversy and not with respect to the government business. That is the position I occupy. It is the position my administration, so far as I can control it, will occupy."

After their interview with the President the delegates visited Secretaries Meyer and Dickinson and Senators Oliver and Penrose of Pennsylvania.

SHIP IS AGROUND TWICE IN HARBOR

After stowing 1,500,000 feet of lumber the British ship Rhine, Captain Bergman, was towed down from her loading berth at Mystic wharves today and is now anchored in President roads waiting for a crew. The ship was delayed a week by low tides. She is drawing 21 feet of water and before she passed out by the navy yard this morning in tow of the tug Juno, she touched bottom twice.

Captain Bergman was busy today securing a crew and expects to sail early Thursday for Buenos Aires.

COLONEL ASTOR SELLS HIS YACHT

NEW YORK—Col. John Jacob Astor of the New York Yacht Club has sold his steam yacht, the Nourmahal, to Pierre Paul Demers, formerly United States consul to Bahia, Brazil.

The Nourmahal is now lying at Morse's basin, South Brooklyn, and will be refitted for a cruise to Brazilian waters, where Mr. Demers is interested in big concessions recently made by the Brazilian government.

EFFORT TO OPEN PARK GOLF LINKS

Author Connolly, Who Seeks Congressional Nomination, Interests Himself in Securing Privileges at Reserve.

James B. Connolly, the author, who is to make a campaign for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the tenth congressional district, is very active in securing from the park commissioners better conditions on the Franklin Park golf links. It appears that for some reason the links have not yet been opened, nor the necessary spring repairs made. A committee of interested citizens who went to the park commission got no favorable reply, and as a result Mr. Connolly has taken the matter to the mayor.

Notification was sent to the mayor today that the board of health has discontinued the privileges for dumping refuse on four locations in the Back Bay as the result of complaints which have been sent in.

One location was in Worthington street; adjoining the property of Mrs. John Gardner and near Simmons College, and the others were the so-called Longwood avenue dump and three in Brookline avenue, one being at Brookline avenue and the Fenway.

ART COMMISSION MEMBER NAMED

Alexander Wadsworth Longfellow was today reappointed to the Boston art commission for a three-year term by Mayor John F. Fitzgerald. Mr. Longfellow's present term expires April 30. His name was presented by the Boston Society of Architects.

There will be two other vacancies May 1 which will be filled by the mayor after considering recommendations by the Museum of Fine Arts and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

STATE G. A. R. MEN OPEN SESSION WITH AFFILIATED BODIES

President, Mrs. Sawyer—Senior Vice-President Florence Haynes of Salem, Junior Vice-President Nellie F. Libbey of Lynn, Secretary Mary E. Elliott of Somerville, Treasurer Fannie M. Jones of Somerville, Inspector Susie F. Burton of Dorchester and Counselor Mary E. Knowles.

They were followed by the address of the president, who said in part:

"The condition of the department can be called excellent, with its 14,824 members and 173 corps, the number on our roll Jan. 1, 1910. There has been a net gain of 99 members through the year. It is with regret that we report the loss of one corps, Alanson Hamilton, No. 86, of West Brookfield. The post to which the corps was auxiliary gave up its hall and decided to hold its meetings at the homes of the comrades.

"It is encouraging to note that 100 corps reported no suspensions for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1909. I advise that this matter be made a subject of special consideration by every corps at some meeting in the near future, with a view of adopting some method whereby the number of suspensions may be lessened.

INSURGENTS PRAISE MR. BEVERIDGE FOR HIS TARIFF SPEECH

WASHINGTON.—While the White House today had nothing to say in regard to the attitude of Senator Beveridge toward the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, as expressed in his speech before the Indiana state convention Tuesday, the utterance was the subject of considerable comment elsewhere in Washington.

It is probable that President Taft will let the Indiana situation severely alone, despite his championship of the tariff law at all times. While he recognized Mr. Beveridge as the head of the party in the Hoosier state he turned over to him absolutely the management of the campaign and gave him full swing as to the tariff. Undoubtedly the President desired an endorsement of the Payne-Aldrich bill, but relied on Senator Beveridge to do the right thing for the party. It was reasoned that even insurgent Republican victory is better than total defeat.

While the regulars are today deploring the "insurgency" of the Indiana platform, the insurgents and progressives are more than satisfied with the way Mr. Beveridge handled the matter.

"The people of Indiana are to be congratulated," said Senator Dolliver of Iowa. "Senator Beveridge now stands on the firing line of the battle which has become nation-wide, for the defense of public rights against the evil influences which are seeking to capture the government. His success concerns every man, woman and child in Indiana regardless of politics."

Senator Clapp of Minnesota, one of the Republicans who voted against the Payne-Aldrich bill in the Senate, said:

"The platform is to be especially recommended for its demand for a real tariff commission and we believe we shall be able to pass a law creating such a commission."

Senator Bristow of Kansas and other insurgents declare the platform represents, faithfully, the tariff plank in the national platform of 1908.

Indiana Democrats, however, are sure that the Beveridge platform means success for the Democratic party in the fall campaign.

"I predict the next Legislature will be Democratic by from 30 to 40," said Representative Cullop. "The platform of the Republican convention antagonizes every declaration on the subject of the tariff made by the party from its beginning. No self-respecting Republican can support that platform. Naturally the Democrats will benefit by the split in the Republican ranks."

REPORT IS EXPECTED ON ELEVATED STOCK HOLDING BILL SOON

A report from the street railway committee to the Legislature on the question of authorizing the Boston Elevated Railway Company to acquire stock and control in contiguous trolley lines is to be expected within a short time. The parties being heard at the present time are those in opposition.

The Public Franchise League, represented by George W. Anderson, Edward A. Filene, and Joseph B. Eastman, is taking an active part in opposing the measure. It contends that the Elevated has not sufficient capital to undertake such a project, when neither it nor the connecting lines are in an over-flourishing condition; that the proposition is such a large one that it is better to wait another year; and that the future should be considered with especial reference to five-cent fares. The league would go so far as to recommend an entirely new agreement between the state and the Elevated on this question of fares.

Bentley W. Warren for the Massachusetts Electric Companies says that the proposition should be a general one, and not one affecting the Elevated alone. The House spent almost all of Tuesday debating the question of an open spring season for birds on the cape, and finally defeated the measure by a vote of 122 to 85.

The Senate defeated the Hemeny bill to authorize the carrying of freight and express by street railways. The committee report on this subject was adverse, and the Senate refused substitution.

The House today will continue the debate on the question of relieving cities and towns of their part of the cost of abolishing grade crossings. The argument is made that the cost to municipalities in many cases is absolutely prohibitive.

The following changes in Senate committees have been announced: Senator Bennett of Essex, from counties to the chairmanship of street railways; Senator Keith of Plymouth, to election laws; Senator Doyle of Suffolk, from military affairs to street railways; Senator Bunting of Essex, to be chairman of counties in place of Senator Bennett; Senator Meany of Worcester, to public lighting; Senator Mailey of Hampden, to counties and military affairs.

The committee on metropolitan affairs has reported unanimously in favor of a bill creating a metropolitan Boston district for purposes of cooperation.

The committee on taxation closed its hearing Tuesday on the question of an amendment to the state constitution to permit classification of property for purposes of taxation. Nathan Matthews, Jr., spoke in opposition at the final hearing. The committee on cities heard many citizens of Lynn in favor of a new charter for that city.

ILLUSTRIOUS ARRAY FOR FISHERIES CASE AT HAGUE TRIBUNAL

A dispatch from Washington today says that an array of counsel, greater in number and more illustrious in reputation than ever before assembled at The Hague to engage in the trial of a special case, has been retained to represent America and Great Britain in the determination of the fisheries dispute between this country and Canada, constituting undoubtedly the most important issue ever presented to the great peace tribunal.

The Hon. Samuel J. Elder of Boston is named as one of the counsel for the United States in the presentation of the case.

Technically this case involves the determination of differences which have arisen between the two governments about the true intent of the provisions of article 1, of the treaty of 1818, defining the fishing rights of Americans and Canadians in their respective waters.

The issue of greatest import is the determination of the right of a colony or province, such as Canada or Newfoundland, by local legislation to deprive persons of rights conferred by treaty between the principals.

On June 1, next, the arbitration tribunal will meet at The Hague to hear the oral arguments.

The arbitration court will consist of Dr. Heinrich Lammasch of Austria, umpire, who will act as president, Luis M. Drago of Argentina, Jonkheer A. F. de Savornin Lohman of the Netherlands, Judge George Gray of Delaware, and Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, chief justice of the supreme court of Canada.

The agent of Great Britain in this arbitration is the Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, minister of justice of Canada. The counsel on the part of Great Britain are the Rt. Hon. Sir William Robson, KC, attorney general of England; the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Finlay, KC, formerly attorney general of England; Sir H. Erle Richards, KC, and on the part of Canada, John S. Ewart, KC, George Shepley, KC, W. N. Tilley, and on the part of Newfoundland the Hon. Sir Edward Morris, KC, premier of Newfoundland, the Hon. Sir James Winter, KC, formerly attorney general of Newfoundland; D. Morrison, KC, attorney general of Newfoundland, and the solicitors are Messrs. Blake and Redden.

The agent of the United States is Chandler P. Anderson. The United States counsel are Senator Elihu Root, George Turner and Samuel J. Elder, and the associate counsel are James Brown Scott, solicitor for the department of state, Charles B. Warren and Robert Lansing.

however, that he could see no reason for removing the fences, since all that they do is to prevent a round trip.

"If a person is going north, for instance," said Mr. White, "and stops at the South station, surely he would not expect to be transferred to a train going south. At Boylston street the fences are so arranged that a person coming in from Boylston street may transfer to cars going to Roxbury or to the South End, but they prevent his transferring to a car going back in the same direction from which he came."

Mr. White further said, in reference to the new illuminated disc signs displaying the figure 9 on the right-hand forward corner of the hood of the Brighton avenue-Newton cars, that it is an experiment to test that kind of a sign. Since the plan of painting all cars of the company one color was adopted expressions of regret have been received from some patrons, who said that the distinctive color of the cars formerly used to distinguish those of one division from another, helped them to take their proper car. Mr. White said that if the new sign proved successful it would probably be adopted to designate the nine divisions.

In pursuance of fulfilling its duty in connection with the recent changes of cars entering the subway from Boylston street the Elevated has stationed at the Park street station an "announcer." This employee, with a megaphone, informs patrons that the Milton and Grove Hall cross town cars go now to the North station instead of taking the Park street loop and must be boarded at the Pleasant street cars platform. This method will be employed for a few days only.

LEATHER COURSE BEGUN IN BOSTON

First Work of the Vocational School Started With Explanations of the Benefits Intended.

The leather course of the new vocational school, established by the Boston school department, opened at 91 Bedford street Tuesday, according to schedule. It is believed that the opening of this school marks the beginning of an extensive movement throughout the state to establish similar schools in the most important cities and including various branches of mercantile and manufacturing education.

W. Stewart Field, representing the school committee, outlined the purpose of the school. For 30 years, he said, there have been in Germany schools of this sort, and employers have been compelled to give their employees time to attend them. In order that the United States may keep abreast with foreign industrial careers, he said, must be taught to know something about the business beyond what they encounter in their routine work.

The other speakers were: Harry I. Thayer, Fred B. Rice, Louis A. Coolidge, Thomas F. Anderson, secretary of the New England Shoe and Leather Association; James F. McElwain, chairman of the educational committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and Elisha W. Cobb.

MR. WICKERSHAM POLITICAL COACH

Attorney-General Furnishes Yale News With Advice to Young College Men Who Seek Public Careers.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—At the request of the editors of the Yale News, official organ of Yale University, Attorney-General Wickersham today gives his views on the young college man who would enter American politics.

"The most important thing," said Mr. Wickersham, "for the young man who intends entering politics is to acquire a complete knowledge of his own country's history. In addition, I would advise the study of all modern languages, especially Spanish. A study of economics is also important. A course at a college law school would, of course, be advantageous but not indispensable."

Attorney-General Wickersham points out an "easy" way for entering the political field when he says, "If a chance is given to go as private secretary to some prominent politician in Washington it affords a valuable insight into the processes of government." In Attorney-General Wickersham's opinion the college man is an ever-increasing important factor in American politics.

The balance of 85 per cent would place the bank upon a sound financial basis, it was stated. The defalcation amounted to $424,442.89. The deposits at the time the bank was closed showed a total of $3,282,882.

RAILWAY LEASES TRACT FOR PARK

Boston & Northern Secures a Portion of Rural Estate on "Air Line" to Beverly for Summer Amusements.

LYNN, Mass.—The Boston & Northern Street Railway Company has added another summer amusement park to its list of stopover resorts by taking a six months' lease of a portion of the Fay estate on the famous "air-line" route between Boston and Beverly. This same property was opened up for similar purposes late last fall as an experiment and the success attending it resulted in negotiations which terminated in a lease of the park this summer.

Division Superintendent Frank C. Wilkison announces that a rustic open-air theater is to be erected there within a few weeks and that the grounds will be extensively improved by May 1, making the place an ideal picnic park for patrons of the road en route between the North and South Shores. The park adjoins the famous Floating Bridge pond.

That the railway company anticipates heavy patronage on that line this summer is evidenced by the purchase of several additional semi-convertible cars of the latest design for use of that road.

MAYOR PRAISES TRADE SCHOOLS

Declares, at Boston City Club, That No Department Pays Such High Interest on the Money Invested.

Industrial schools received a decided boom at the hands of Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, who spoke before the Boston City Club Tuesday evening. The mayor made the declaration that there are more unskilled boys and men in this city than in any other city in the country.

"Every department," he said, "wants more money for its own use, and we must draw the line somewhere, but nowhere can we better put money than here, or get better interest upon it. There is no undertaking that should be more encouraged by the whole of Boston than this."

Joseph Lee of the Boston school committee spoke, "To keep Boston on the map," he said, "it is necessary to train people for their job, to teach them how to make a living and how to live."

REGULARS' SHOES FOR THE MILITIA

At present a number of individual companies are supplied with government shoes, purchased out of company funds. It is proposed to supply the entire militia with these shoes by funds taken out of the national appropriation to run the state militia. The order would mean considerable work for the employees of the factory at Millis.

Trolley "Farm Special" Off Soon

Schedule for first journey to rural districts is now ready.

ONE OF CARS FITTED FOR TRIP.

Massachusetts Agricultural College professor will give lectures en route and explain exhibits on board.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—Officials of the New England Investment & Security Company have completed the schedule on which the trolley "farming special" will run April 14, 15 and 16, under the direction of the Massachusetts Agricultural College. This trolley special is the first of the kind that has ever been planned in New England, and is the result of cooperation by the Springfield Board of Trade, the street railway officials and the college authorities. It is designed to bring the latest ideas in farming to those farmers who can seldom find time to visit the Agricultural College at Amherst, and who are too far from the railroad to have an opportunity to see the "better farming special" that the Boston & Albany railroad has been running.

The trolley farming special will operate on the lines of the Springfield street railway, Western Massachusetts railway, Springfield & Eastern, Massachusetts Central, Worcester Consolidated and allied lines. It will consist of four large double-deck cars, from which the seats will be removed to make room for the exhibits. The cars will contain the following exhibits: Dairying and animal husbandry, fruit and insects, fertilizers and farm crops and state forest's exhibit.

Prof. W. D. Hurd of the Agricultural College, who is in charge of the special, has written to prominent men in each of the towns that will be visited, asking that the subjects on which the people wish the professors to specialize be sent to the college, so that the lecturers with the special may get as close as possible to the needs of the people in the towns in which the special will stop.

It is believed that together the trolley farming special and the Boston & Albany's better farming special will have covered nearly half of the entire farming section of the state when the last trip is ended. The trolley special will have the same lecturers that have been with the railroad special, although there will not be so many because of the limited space in the cars, the exhibits being given preference. The officials in charge of the trip plan to give the lectures out of doors wherever it is impossible to obtain a meeting place directly opposite the stopping places of the cars. The first 15 or 20 minutes after arrival will be devoted to a display of the exhibits, and instructors from the college will explain them and answer any questions. The meeting will follow, in a hall or the open air, and then the cars will proceed to the next stopping place.

The first day's trip will be over the line of the Western Massachusetts Street railway, stops being made at Russell and Huntington. On the second day the cars will go over the Massachusetts Central line between Palmer and Worcester, stops being made at Brimfield, Fiskdale, Southbridge and maybe one or two other towns. On Saturday, the cars will visit towns in the vicinity of Worcester. Accompanying the college officials will be C. V. Wood, traffic manager of the New England Investment & Security Company, and the general managers of the street railway lines over which the special will pass.

The complete schedule arranged for the trip follows: April 14—Leave Amherst at 8:20 a. m., be in South Hadley from 8:55 to 9:55; Russell, 12:35 to 1:35; Huntington, 1:54 to 3:57; arrive in Springfield at 5:49; evening meeting in the Springfield Board of Trade rooms at 8 o'clock, at which President Butterfield and President W. C. Brown of the New York Central railroad will speak.

April 15—In North Wilbraham from 9:28 to 10:58 o'clock in the morning; Brimfield, 11:40 to 1:40; Sturbridge, 2:07 to 4:07; arrive in Charlton Center at 4:50, where there will be an evening meeting at 8 o'clock. April 16—Be in Oxford from 8:15 to 10:15 o'clock in the morning; Holden, 1 to 2:33; Sterling, 4:14 to 5:30, after which the party will return to Springfield.

EXTENSION CHARTER FOR GRAND TRUNK IS REPORTED TO HOUSE

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—A charter to the Southern New England Railway Company, the proposed Grand Trunk extension, has just been favorably reported in the Rhode Island House by the committee on corporations.

Vice-President E. H. Fitzhugh of the Grand Trunk states that he considers some of the restrictions imposed very stringent. He declared, however, that he believed the committee had tried to make a charter which would permit the building of the road and that the company would endeavor to comply.

In case it should find this impossible, he said, application would be made to the Legislature in order to secure modifications which would make the construction and operation of the road possible. The act was reported by Horace N. Hassard, chairman of the committee. It was referred to the calendar and comes up for formal consideration tomorrow.

Important changes from the original bill were made by the committee. The location of the road is fixed with some what more definiteness, the bill reported adding that the line in Rhode Island, instead of beginning at an indefinite point on the line between Rhode Island and Massachusetts, shall begin where the proposed Massachusetts section of the new railroad cuts the state line.

The city of Central Falls is added to the list of municipalities through which the railway may be built, and it is made mandatory that the line entering Providence shall run into or through the cities of Woonsocket, Pawtucket and Providence.

The grade crossing problem is settled by a requirement that the corporation shall not lay out or build its road across any highway within the limits of any city or across any state road at grade.

Mr. Fitzhugh says: "If the charter is granted in its present form, we will immediately set to work to prepare and file a location, and if any obstacles which appear to be insuperable develop on account of the restrictive provisions as to grade crossings, my company will again lay the matter before the Legislature and ask for such modification of the charter as will enable it to carry out the general purpose of bringing the Grand Trunk railway into the state of Rhode Island and the city of Providence."

LISTING BY POLICE NEARLY FINISHED

The police listing which started April 1 was practically finished Tuesday night and the police expect to submit the complete list to the board of election commissioners before the time limit on April 19. The list is expected to contain more than 200,000 names of all male residents of Boston of 20 years or over. More than 1000 policemen have been engaged in the work at a cost to the city of about $25,000. Lieutenants Goodwin of the Lagrange street station and Lee of the Joy street station with a staff of clerks are now busy at work compiling the lists.

ORIENTAL RUGS DOMESTIC

¶ No merchant has yet been able to devise a means of selling every prospective customer that enters his store, and there is no likelihood of this ever being done.

¶ But—

¶ The tremendously large proportion of those who come back to us to buy—after having left our store to look elsewhere before coming to a decision—is a source of no little gratification to us.

¶ It speaks volumes for our merchandise and our prices.

¶ The buying advantages we possess as a wholesale house, together with our wholesale location (one block from Washington Street and Temple Place), carrying a very low rent, have a marked influence on our prices.

STOCKS REMAIN IN A NARROW GROOVE, BUSINESS QUIET

Market Leaders Moderately Strong, Lending Firmness to the Remainder of New York List.

BOSTON IS STEADY

Some of the professional traders in securities entertain the belief that when everybody is pessimistic it is a good time to buy stocks, and when every one is bullish it is the time to sell. It probably was in part owing to this opinion that a covering of shorts sent prices upward briskly at the close of yesterday's market. The tone has been distinctly bearish for some time past, and has been accentuated each day until the professionals thought it time to cover, even though the market was very dull. There was nothing in the news developments, either yesterday or today, to affect prices to any extent. The bears resumed activity this morning shortly after the opening, but their efforts were of little avail.

The average trader kept his eye upon Steel, Union Pacific and Reading and as these stocks early showed considerable strength the general market was inclined to firmness. Steel opened up 1/4 at 85 1/2, sold under 85 and then sold up around 86. Union Pacific opened at 187, last night's closing price, and sagged off a small fraction during the early sales, and then rose above 187. Reading, which had a net gain of 2 points yesterday, opened up 1/2 at 166 1/2, reached 1/2 and advanced above close to 167.

Bethlehem Steel came into prominence this morning by opening up 2 points at 32. The company's good annual report had to do with the strength of this security. American Locomotive opened up 1/2 at 51 1/2, advanced a point and then reacted, losing most of the gain. Toward midday it again rose to 52 1/2.

Southern Pacific and New York Central showed some signs of strength, both making advances during the forenoon. American Smelting opened unchanged at 82 1/2 and gained nearly a point before midday. Amalgamated Copper opened off 1/2 at 70 1/2 and improved a good fraction.

There was a better feeling on the local market after the opening today. Miami was quite active. It opened unchanged at 23 1/2 and sold above 24. Utah Consolidated was off 1/2 at the opening at 25, dropped to 23 1/2 and recovered partially. Indiana opened off 1/2 at 28 1/2 and lost about 1/2 point. Ray Consolidated opened up 1/2 at 20 1/2 and advanced fractionally. Lake Copper opened 1/2 lower at 50 1/2, improved to 50 1/2, and then sold off to 50 1/2, recovering to 51 1/2. Prices toward midday were generally higher.

Pacific Coast advanced from 110 to 112 in New York on the declaration of an extra dividend. Further advances were made by the general list, but at the beginning of the last hour there were some recessions. The local market also receded somewhat.

WOOL MERCHANTS MAKING FEW ADVANCE PURCHASES

Few Contracts for New Clips Previous to Shearing Are Made, as Compared With the Buying Movement of Last Year—Sagging Prices at Seaboard.

Sagging prices in the seaboard markets at this season of the year are not a new feature of the wool trade, for there is always some desire to clear up holdings at the end of the first quarter and prepare for new clips. Moreover there is also an eye to the effect upon growers of easier quotations for stock at this juncture.

Aside from the degree of price concession that is due to these causes, however, there seems to be at the present time on the part of wool merchants a greater disposition than usual to preserve an apathetic attitude toward the subject of purchases of new clips from the primary markets. Eastern buyers are not in a hurry to take on the coming supply, especially at quotations above a parity with the value of such holdings as they have carried over.

The contrast with the previous year's buying movement is extremely marked. Last season, contracting in advance of shearing was carried to a point seldom observed in the trade. This year only 18,000,000 to 20,000,000 pounds of wool, it is calculated, have been spoken for in advance thus far, or about one-eighth of the quantity that was under contract in April, 1909.

It is believed that growers will have to modify their views of values considerably to effect sales this spring to Boston dealers, although this is the cheapest market probably in the world at the present time, and, therefore, is less potent to influence growers than it would be if the foreign markets were equally unsettled.

The fact that London and continental price levels have not sagged this year as this market has done, stiffens the views of sheep raisers materially, and they are disposed to hold out against eastern buyers' efforts to obtain lower figures.

The seaboard wool markets, however, take their tone more directly from the goods market, with which they are closely in touch, than from most of the other factors that are now reckoned with as bearing on the outlook.

It is apparent here, if not in other quarters of the globe to such a pronounced extent, that higher prices for fabrics will not be accepted without a protest, and that the reaction from last year's high raw material level is based upon an aroused opposition to the general upward tendency of all commodity prices, regardless of the underlying causes.

Under these circumstances, and partly also because of the increasing competition between worsteds and woolsens in clothing lines, the wool merchants are disposed to operate more cautiously for all grades of new offerings and to await a move from the producers to induce broader purchasing.

Recent transactions in this market have been on a level 10 to 15 per cent lower for some kinds of wool than the top prices quoted within the past year. This applies particularly to fleeces, which have slumped considerably from the high point.

For Ohio XX and above 34/35 cents is the nominal price. Unwashed delaine has sold at 27 cents, and sales are reported of washed delaine at 36 cents. Fine and fine medium territory wools are on a secured basis only a little above 60 cents.

The outcome of the virtual deadlock now existing relative to values of shearing in the West is awaited with great interest by all factors in the trade, from producer to manufacturer particularly, and in lesser degree also from the manufacturer to the retail customer, who is confronted with the problem of the high cost of living more specifically now than ever before, it is asserted.

SHIPPING NEWS

The schooner Harriet, another important addition to the knockabout fleet, came in today on her maiden trip, bringing an almost capacity fare. The new vessel was built at Gloucester from the McManus model by John Bishop. The schooner is of 58 net tonnage with a capacity of 130,000 pounds of fish. She is in command of Capt. Ralph Silva. The captain was out 12 days on Brown's bank and brought in 110,000 pounds of cod and 1000 pounds of halibut.

A little more than half a million pounds of fish was brought in this morning, 278,500 pounds of haddock, 211,300 pounds of cod and small fares of hake, cusk, pollock and halibut.

In addition to the Harriet, the following arrivals were in: Juliette 12-300, Mary J. Ward 6500, Mabel Bryson 18,000, Genesta 14,000, W. M. Goodspeed 14,000, Emily Conney 22,500, Alice M. Guthrie 80,000, Spray 59,000, Elizabeth W. Numan 31,000, Josephine de Costa 20,000, Jessie Costa 47,000, Matchless 39,000, Mary C. Santos 41,000, Diana 2000, sloop Morning Star 30,000.

Longshoremen are hard at work today discharging cargo from the Hamburg-American line steamship Bethania, Captain von Doeren, now at pier 47, Mystic docks.

The Bethania, which arrived just before dark Tuesday, brought in one of the largest cargoes ever shipped out of Germany. In her holds were nearly 11,000 tons of merchandise, including heavy consignments of fertilizer, chemicals, wool, hides, toys, musicware, hollow glass, earthenware, musical instruments, machinery, etc. About 5500 tons of this cargo will be unloaded here and the remainder taken to Baltimore. The steamer left Hamburg March 23.

Practically none of the fish brought to T wharf Tuesday was taken out owing to the dull market, and the majority of the vessels sailed for Gloucester to dispose of their fares to the splitters. There was virtually no demand for any fish except halibut, which sold at a good figure.

The arrivals: Josie and Phebe with 51,000 pounds, sloop Minerva 2200, Mary Silveira 41,000, Victor and Ethel 40,000, Annie Perry 43,000, Rose Dethan 90,000, A. C. Newhall 19,000, George H. Lubee 33,000, Morant 15,000, Alice 24,000, Quannapowitt 65,000, Washakie 28,000, Sadie M. Numan 25,000, Richard 86,000, Catherine and Ellen 95,000, Mary F. Sinner 60,000, Gertrude 40,500, Clara G. In addition to the above halibut was brought in by the following vessels: Clara G. Silva 500 pounds, Robert and Arthur 1800, Quannapowitt 600, Washakie 500 and Richard 1000.

New Cleveland, Ohio, Carfare Plan Explained

"Success of the lower cost system, established after a long fight, is closely watched"

THE article presented herewith explains in detail the somewhat misunderstood system of street car fares charged in Cleveland, O., at present, and what may be collected hereafter, as a result of the recent referendum vote giving the citizens control of the street car lines following the nine years' fight for 3-cent fares.

CLEVELAND, O.—The success of the new carfare system, established by this city after winning the nine years' fight for lower rates and the control of the streets and trolley lines, is being watched by the entire country. Although the city does not pay the straight 3-cent fare for which former Mayor Tom L. Johnson led so long a struggle, it does enjoy the lowest carfare in the country and is master in its own confines.

Feb. 17, 1910, its voters ratified by their ballots an ordinance which they think a model one and which establishes as a working principle of municipal law that a great public service corporation is entitled to a return of no more than 6 per cent on its investment.

By accepting the ordinance immediately after its approval by the voters at the referendum election, the traction company has recognized the city's paramount rights in its thoroughfares and has agreed that the right to determine the routing of cars and to regulate the standards of service rests with the city council.

Under the new franchise, which was drafted by Federal Judge Robert W. Taylor of the northern Ohio district, the council has the right to limit or approve charges for operating expenses and maintenance, and may also rule upon all expenses for capital account for new construction. More than that, a watchdog for the city, in a street railroad commissioner appointed by the mayor, is to have access at all times to the company's books and is to act as the city's representative in all negotiations between the Cleveland Railway Company and the council.

Although the most important features of the Taylor ordinance, as the franchise is known, are its provisions in regard to the earnings of the company and those which cover the city's right to supervise and control its traction system, the rate of fare which it establishes is much nearer to the hearts of Cleveland householders.

Hereafter Cleveland street railway fares are to be based upon a sliding scale. The possible maximum charge is 4 cents, with a ticket rate of seven for 25 cents and a cent charge for transfer, but the fare is to be regulated so that the traction company can never make more than enough to pay its shareholders 6 per cent on the capital stock and interest on a bond issue which is to be floated to meet the cost of promised and much needed improvements.

The initial rate of fare, which went into effect all over the system 24 hours after the vote was counted, is 3 cents with 1 cent charge for transfer. The cash fare is 5 cents, unless the car rider has 3 cents in change. He cannot expect the conductor to make change for him and is urged to buy cardboard tickets, five for 15 cents. This makes the conductors' work easier than are metal disks which formerly were used.

The charge will remain at that point for eight months, under the provisions of the ordinance, and will then be raised or lowered as the earnings of the company, the demands of service and the disposition of the city council require. Always, however, the standard of service must be the best possible and the fare the least which brings the traction shareholders what Cleveland has decided is a fair return on an investment which totals about $25,000,000.

The decreed life of the Taylor ordinance is 25 years, but, should the city fail to renew the grant for 25 years at the end of each 10-year period, the company shall have the right to charge the maximum fare until the expiration of the franchise.

Should changes in the Ohio law permit, the city may take over the ownership of the system at the expiration of the grant. On the other hand, should the city wish to designate a purchaser for the traction system at the end of eight years, it may do so, but such a purchaser must give the Cleveland Railway Company shareholders $110 per share, or 10 per cent more than the par value of the capital stock.

The traction system passed from the hands of a federal court receiver into those of the Cleveland Railway Company on March 1 and, almost immediately after, the first problem in regard to fares confronted the directors of that corporation. The village of Collinwood, a suburb with about 12,000 inhabitants had become a part of the system after the city council, last December, had passed the Taylor ordinance preparatory to a referendum election, and its voters, at the referendum, were almost a unit for the grant.

It developed, however, that in the minor safeguards in the ordinance which concerned suburban service there was provision that Collinwood and a number of other suburbs must be charged five cent fare under old contracts. Despite the protests of a number of councilmen and of the voters of the former city of Collinwood, the mayor, at the advice of the city solicitor, directed the traction company to charge the higher rate. Under the terms of its franchise it had to do so.

The mayor, in thus seeming to discriminate against a newly acquired section of Cleveland, was, in reality, endeavoring to insure the success of the settlement ordinance. Newburg City, another suburb about the size of Collinwood, is even now considering joining the city and its voters are planning to demand low fare street car service. It has not yet been decided whether another franchise to cover the suburbs must be given the Cleveland Railway Company to insure them low fare or not, but some effort in that direction will soon be made. An ordinance in that direction is now pending in council, but is not viewed favorably by the administration.

GUESS HIS NAME?

You can put him on a ship and send him far across the sea.

To a distant jungle where the lion capers,

Or surround him with a desert big as all our doors, yet he

Will day by day keep getting in the papers.

He can never find a spot on earth so hidden or remote

But in the front-page headlines we'll peruse him.

For it counts not where he goes, land or sea, the whole world knows,

It can never, never, never, never lose him.

The new law in California makes it obligatory for hotel and restaurant menus to tell the age of the eggs served.

How would it do to furnish like information regarding the age of the "spring chicken," too?

THE COLLECTING FAD.

Hurdy—Billion has a great fondness for gathering old pieces of furniture, hasn't he?

Gurdy—Yes, some day I expect to hear him boasting that he has secured the original multiplication table.

Upson—I'm glad I am not one of these poor fishermen who have to live catch as catch can.

Downes—Yes, so am I; still they say their net profits are pretty large, sometimes.

THE AGE OF WISDOM.

It taketh age to make us sage.

The wise men never doubt it:

The older we grow the more we know

But the less we brag about it.

Helmer—Did any of your party suffer from thirst in crossing the Sahara?

Skelter—No, fortunately each of us carried a watch that contained a running spring.

NOT A "SQUARE DEAL."

Grandma—Well, Dimples, what did you think of the church service this morning?

Dimples—Oh, I thought it was all very nice, but I didn't think it was fair for one man to do all the work and then for some other men to go around and get all the money.

Traveler—I fancy you must be lonely living up here among the foothills where you never get a glimpse of anything going by.

Native—No, we are not. We can see the mountain pass any day although we have never heard its peak.

DRAWING THE LINE.

Oh, we sigh to taste some cocoa like our mothers used to make,

And we yearn to get a slice of bread like that they used to bake;

But, may be we're ungrateful, yet we're sure we do not care.

To feel once more a slipper like our fathers used to wear.

The Tree—I shall have to confess that I feel myself very much above you.

The Pig—There is small occasion for it, for you will admit that like myself you depend on your root for a living.

A RISING MARKET.

Guest—Didn't I understand you to say that chops would be 40 cents, while the check you have given me calls for 50 cents?

Waiter—Yes, sir; pork has gone up that much while you have been waiting for your order.

Tiddledly—I have read that the Chinese do most of their traveling on foot. Is that because they have so few railroads and other means of transportation?

Winks—Yes, you know there is only one Cochinchina.

THE EXPLANATION.

Yes, living is so high, they say,

The workmen must have more pay.

With higher wages things cost more.

To make or grow than heretofore,

And that makes living higher, see?

It's simple, quite, as it can be.

Each thing costs more—it's "strictly biz."

Because the other things have "riz."

RULES FOR PROPER MILK CARE TOLD BY THE STATE'S AGENT

The state board of agriculture is sending out a set of rules prepared by P. M. Harwood, general agent of the state dairy bureau, for the care of milk in the home, among which is the following:

Take in milk and cream as soon as possible after being left at your door and place in the refrigerator.

Keep milk and cream cold until ready for use.

If ice cannot be had, wrap the bottle in a wet cloth and stand in a dish of water by an open window, out of the sun. Evaporation of the water will cool the milk.

Pour from the bottle only what milk or cream is needed for immediate use. Milk or cream that has been warm should never be poured back into the bottle of cold milk or cream.

Utensils used for milk should first be rinsed with cold water, then washed with warm water and soap or washing powder, and finally rinsed with boiling water, thoroughly drained and allowed to become cold before being filled with milk.

Have a separate quart of milk for the baby. What he does not use others may have.

Wash and return all milk and cream bottles daily.

rioting, Senor Palacios, the Peruvian consul, sought an asylum at the American consulate Tuesday. President Alfaro has received a telegram from Gen. Bustamante of the Colombian army offering 5000 troops from Colombia to assist Ecuador in the event of hostilities with Peru.

The trouble between Peru and Ecuador began with a boundary dispute which is still before King Alfonso, the mutually selected arbitrator. Colombia has expressed a popular sympathy with Ecuador, and Chili also has a dispute over the provinces of Tacna and Arica with Peru, so the latter faces the unfriendliness of three sister republics.

From recent reports it is learned that the Peruvian army contains about 4000 officers and men. The army is provided with 20,000 Mauser rifles, 24 Maxim and Gatling guns and 24 light guns. The Peruvian navy consists of the Lima, a cruiser of 1700 tons, the Almirante Grau and the Bolognesi, each of 3200 tons and 24 knots speed.

The Ecuadorian army numbers approximately the same as that of Peru, but the national guard is said to consist of 90,000 men. The Ecuadorian navy consists of a torpedo launch and a transport.

GREAT NORTHERN'S EXHIBITION CAR IS SHOWING AT ATHOL

The Great Northern railway exhibition car, which has met with a great deal of success and interest in the different sections of the country through which it has traveled, is in Athol today. It will be open throughout the day, and those interested in the products of the far Northwest can enjoy the fine exhibit of grains, grasses, fruits and vegetables with the explanation of W. W. Morrison, immigration agent of the Great Northern.

Mr. Morrison will give a free lecture tonight illustrated by 175 views from along the line of the Great Northern railway between St. Paul and Seattle, showing the wheat and stock raising, lumbering, etc. The fruit exhibit comes from the Wenatchee valley, Washington.

The exhibition car as well as the exhibit recently closed at 201 Washington street is the development of the purpose of President L. W. Hill of the Great Northern to educate the people of sections of the country apart from the Northwest who cannot visit that territory. President Hill is deeply interested in the question of immigration settlers. The exhibit at Washington street has been presented to the Robert G. Shaw school of Jamaica Plain.

The management of the Great Northern system desires to have it known that it does not wish to antagonize the farmers of the East by showing up the advantages of the Northwest; it wishes to cooperate with the East. It hopes to enlighten, so far as it can, by bringing the East and the West closer together, by showing to the people here who cannot go to Washington, Montana or Oregon how things are grown in that section.

The exhibition car will stop at Gardner, Mass., April 7; at Fitchburg, April 8 and 9; Worcester, April 11 and 12; Springfield, April 13 and 14; Westfield, April 15, and Pittsfield April 16, whence it will travel back west through Albany.

Ecuador and Peru to Seek Peace at Washington

Negotiations will be begun in attempt to adjust troubles of neighbor nations.

THE CENTRAL SQUARE AND PUBLIC BUILDINGS OF THE PERUVIAN CAPITAL.

Lima, once the seat of the Spanish viceroys, has 35 parks, or plazas, of which the chief is the Plaza Mayor. The government house and municipal building front on this square. The city is inland.

WASHINGTON—Ecuador has expressed an inclination to attempt the adjustment of her difficulty with Peru by direct negotiations at Washington between the diplomatic representatives of the countries concerned, according to information at the state department today.

It is probable that the United States will champion this project, for the situation has become so irritating among Peru, Ecuador, Chile and Colombia that additional provocation might lead to actual hostilities being undertaken. Against this consideration the state department weighs the fact that the territory of three of the countries is not adapted for military operations, while Chile is not directly concerned in the major dispute.

LIMA, Peru—The forces of Peru are under arms. Admiral Villavicencio has been placed in command of the fleet and Colonel Alvarez put at the head of all the land forces in the department of Lambayeque. The government has formed a naval division consisting of the cruisers Almirante Grau, the Lima and the Bolognesi.

The indignation caused here by the attacks upon the Peruvian legation at Quito and upon this country's consulate at Guayaquil continues. The Central Union has called a popular mass meeting.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador—It is officially announced that Ecuador and Peru propose to settle their boundary dispute directly at Washington. Ecuador's special envoy is Clemente Ponce, and he will proceed to the American capital.

It is stated that the relations between Colombia and Peru are also strained.

THE LIBRARY ALCOVE

By SAM WALTER FOSS.

If a book could only be read only once by one person, the price would rise faster than the price of meats, and men and women everywhere would go hungry intellectually. A free public library would be as impossible as a free public grocery store, and the price of books would rapidly mount up well-nigh to the prohibitive limit.

The price of books even under present conditions is high enough, but a high price cannot be maintained for any considerable period of time. Books published at $5 or $6 can frequently be purchased in a year or two for $2 or less. The one dollar and a half novel can be bought in large numbers in fair second-hand condition for 25 or 30 cents. Subscription books, almost without exception, can be purchased for a small fraction of their original cost.

In the last year or two sets of the great standard authors have been procurable at amazingly low price. The best books have been the cheapest. To the confusion of all economic formulas the price has decreased as the merit has increased. With the exception of the current net books librarians never think of paying the list price.

Every good book store has one or two yearly bargain sales, and some stores have bargain sales going on all the time. Because a book is put on a bargain counter is no indication that it is poor literature. It is simply an indication that a new supply of books has come in from the publishers and there is no room in the store for both the new and the old. Consequently the old is sold off for what it will bring; and the new will take its place on the same bargain counter in due time.

Innumerable catalogues from the second-hand dealers in books reach the librarian's desk every week. He welcomes their arrival and examines them with care. They enable him to buy the books he needs, sometimes at astoundingly low prices. The writer has never yet seen a librarian who will admit that his library has funds enough. But with the inadequate funds that all libraries have, and probably always will have, the second-hand dealer in books is a man greatly appreciated by librarians. He makes it possible for the librarian to give the people the books they need, even when the people will not give that officer the money he needs. Among the beneficent forces of modern civilization the second-hand book dealer should occupy a lofty niche of his own.

Now if books could be made indestructible it would not be very expensive to supply a public library with an adequate and permanent collection. But the modern book wears out. With paper made of wood pulp, with sheets flimsily sewed together by machinery, with covers attached to the sheets by a single thickness of brittle paper, the modern book is foredoomed to early disintegration. It goes out to the reader an average of 20 times, after which it must be sent to the binder to be bound as it should have been bound in the first place.

The modern work is not made to last. It is made to sell. Even elegant de luxe editions, bound in full morocco or crushed levant, are frequently very imperfectly sewed and fall to pieces after very slight use. In a public library such books go out 20 times and last perhaps 10 months. It is certainly a conservative statement to say they might be made to last longer.

The writer has before him on his desk "Gattaker's Sermons," in a book published in 1837, only 21 years after the passing away of Shakespeare. This book was published when Charles I. was on the throne of England. It is about the same age as Boston. But it was published on good paper, sewed on fine tapes, and could be read today as well as the day it was first published, if any one could be found today who would take the slightest interest in it.

It cannot be read because in the changing fashion of our literature it is no longer readable. The paper has lasted longer than the thought printed upon it, the leather has proven itself more enduring than the ideas it has bound together.

Now the art of book-binding is not a lost art, the methods of making good paper are still well known. If all the librarians of the world should insist on getting their public library books printed on good paper, well sewed on tapes and "whipstitched," they could, in time, get what they ask for.

It takes a very long time for the linen paper of a book to wear out. If the binding and sewing should be made as good as the paper a book, even in a public library, would last indefinitely. The intellectual food that can now be consumed by 20 different people, could then be consumed a thousand times by as many different people and all public libraries could secure a much larger supply of books with a much smaller aggregate expenditure for a given period of years.

The publisher and the author may not like this line of reasoning. But honest work in the long run always pays. If a book lasts in a public library indefinitely the librarian instead of buying the same book over and over as it wears out every 10 months could buy a large number of duplicates to begin with, and so give an author a large reading during his lifetime. He could see his books driven abreast and not driven tandem in a long procession after he had passed away. This is a good theme for authors and publishers to ponder over.

ABOUT PRUNING TREES

NOW is the time to do your pruning, Mr. Amateur Gardener. At least this is true for the great majority of our hardy ornamental and fruit trees. Early blooming plants and shrubs are best pruned in the summer just after the blossom fades, and the next best time is spring. Broken, old and useless wood should be cut out when discovered, no matter what the time of the year. The great advantage of spring pruning, the nurserymen tell us, is that the cuts grow over more rapidly.

You are advised always to look the shrub or tree over carefully before you begin to prune, so as to make sure what you are going to do. Beginning at the ground, water shoots should not be cut off level with the surface, but you should dig down to the origin and cut as close to the root of the stem as possible. After this is done and the earth packed back in its place, all broken branches should be removed or mended. You then walk around the tree and shorten last year's growth on the lower branches about one third. The aim should be to give a circular effect to the tree. Taking a step-ladder, you go around the tree again, trimming last year's growth higher up, but somewhat shorter than the lower branches.

This process is continued until the entire tree is trimmed. Neglected trees often need cutting back, and the more irregular the growth and the more slender and numerous the branches, the more heavily the tree will have to be pruned. Do not cut off the lower branches when trimming ornamental shrubs. A bush should rest on the ground; its foliage and flowers should meet the grass. Rhododendrons and laurels seldom need any trimming. The rules are about the same for other shrubs as for fruit trees.

Gravity Overcome

An amusing one of the anniversary congratulations published weekly by Life is addressed to Wilbur Wright, as follows:

Life feels a sort of comradeship for Mr. Wright, inasmuch as it is the mission of each of us to overcome the effects of too much gravity. Life was first in the field. The Wrights seem disposed at present to dispute the honors. But there is room for both.

To have enlarged a man's vision and given him control over a new element is a considerable achievement, recognized as such by the French first and afterward the American people.

Mr. Wright, we congratulate you upon your nativity, your inventiveness, and your extraordinary rise in life. May it be permanent. May you remain simple and unspoiled, as becomes a genuine artist.

Society of Authors

Thomas Hardy, the novelist, who has made Wessex essentially his own, has been chosen to succeed George Meredith as president of the Society of Authors. At a meeting of the society, held to welcome him as president, it fell to the lot of Maurice Hewlett, himself a novelist of no slight ability, to introduce him officially to the chair. Mr. Hewlett declared that much as Mr. Hardy had done he had still more to do, and all who know Mr. Hardy's work as a novelist or as a poet will look forward with pleasure to the fulfillment of the chairman's prophecy.

The Law of Liberty

In an article to Young India, published in the Twentieth Century Magazine, Count Tolstoi reveals an interesting point of view of the question of oppression. He says that if the people of India had not believed in the power of force, and had not for all the centuries practised it among themselves, the masses bowing down to certain hundreds of their own people, the coming of the English could not have enslaved them. The mere handful of English folk could never have gained ascendancy over them except by their own racial belief in oppression and despotism. It is a mere fairy tale, unbelievable except to superstition, to say that a commercial company enslaved a nation of 200,000,000 free and strong people. It was the habit of thought and action of the people themselves that made this achievement of the English possible. And Tolstoi seems to see that understanding the real law of life as a law of liberty in divine love would wipe all oppression forever off the earth. He says, "Love is the only means of saving all people from all the disasters they undergo."

A German machine manufacturer has invented a new means of power transmission by the use of steel wire. It is asserted that the system is equal in every way to leather belts, steel bands and chains and is much cheaper. The wires are thin and endless.—Chicago Journal.

LOVE'S GARDEN

There is Sunshine in Love's Garden,
And flowers of every hue;
And in a corner hidden
Are violets—for you.

The perfume from the flowers
As it lingers in the air
Whispers its own sweet message
That Love is everywhere.

The weeds within Love's garden
Must all be uprooted,
No idle thought may enter
The realm of harmony.

Beautiful New England

VIEW OF THE CONNECTICUT.
(Region above the White mountains.)

THE view of the Connecticut winding among the intervals above the White mountains is not surpassed anywhere in its long course. Its nearest approach to these famous peaks is at Lancaster, N. H., 18 miles away. Here, 60 miles from their source, the waters have gained width and depth and circling through meadows and expanding to the north, the shores dotted with trees, it makes a picture rare indeed. The river is fordable at many points north of Lancaster at low water and there are numerous falls, but here a dark, slow current mirrors the hills and trees.

Don't Mention It

The politest man in Boston collided violently with another man on the street. The second man was angry. "My dear sir," said the polite one with a bow, "I don't know which of us is to blame for this encounter. If I ran into you, I beg your pardon; if you ran into me, don't mention it."—Success.

Womanliness and Business

From my work I have become convinced that because a woman achieves financial and mental independence, it by no means follows that she need lose a whit of the feminine perceptions and refinements. As I think over the long list of splendid women whom I have known in the business world it seems to me it would be difficult to find an equal number of women in any sphere of life who possess more of the spirit of true womanliness. And by true womanliness I mean not alone nobility of character, but all those daintinesses which are and always will be of everlasting joy and distinction of the true woman. There comes to my mind in this connection a certain gentlewoman of my acquaintance who for over 20 years has worked in the office of a certain house, and though her work is essentially masculine in its nature, and her days are passed entirely among men, I never knew a gentler or more delicate personality than hers. Violets, which she keeps always on her desk, are quite as fitting to her in the environment of an office as they would be had she never passed out of the luxurious surroundings of her youth.—Bookkeeper.

Cultivation of the Orchid

In a recent number of the "Windsor" there appears a finely illustrated article on "The Quest and Cult of the Orchid." The contributor says: "As much as £2080 has been offered and refused for a single orchid plant; and £100 has been given for a microscopic speck of pollen for hybridizing. In private deals between wealthy amateurs £1200 has been paid for a unique specimen, and £700 for a duplicate or divided plant. Orchid growers take delight in owning these unique 'sports,' because no one else can possibly produce a similar specimen without the consent of the proprietor. At a recent international flower show a perfectly white 'freak' of a purple orchid was shown—the Lælia Purpurata Lewisii. The 'freak' could have been sold for hundreds of pounds, whereas the ordinary purple variety of the plant has never fetched more than 10 shillings. Again, in the case of the cattleyas, white specimens are worth over £200, while ordinary forms of the same would be considered dear at 16s. A white form of the Cattleya Warneri has been sold in London for £1040, and a portion of the same plant was on offer at £600. The ordinary form was worth about eight shillings. To see and admire these freakish specimens, amateurs passed by banks of radiant crispums, some of them carrying 120 magnificent blooms upon their four long graceful racemes."

Government Seeds

How dear to his heart is the little farm garden
My congressman pictures with laudable skill!
The lettuce, the cabbage (with heads that won't harden)
And each tiny pea pod (intent not to fill)!

The gaudy tomatoes and peppers he mails me!
The carrots and turnips (which prove to be weeds!)
The tempting description, the picture that hails me
On each little packet of government seeds!

The wee little packet, the partly filled packet,
The elderly packet of government seeds!
How sweet from the capitol mill to receive it
(A present superb for a farmer like me!)

Not a full packet purchased from seedsman (believe it!)
Can equal these seeds in their antiquity.
But now I've abandoned my rural vocation
A tear of remembrance its furrowed course leads,
For the Aprils I fed to my poultry a ration

Of useless, inanimate government seeds—
A wee little packet, a partly filled packet,
An elderly packet of government seeds.

—M. G. Kains, in the American Agriculturist.

Temperance Work in Mexico

In 1899 Addie Fields went to Mexico to start temperance work on behalf of the W. C. T. U. of the United States. She had been preceded by Mrs. Helen M. Stoddard, who did some pioneer and preparative work. Commencing with the year 1902 the governor of the federal district enacted restrictive legislation, closing saloons and shops earlier, etc. Among the Protestant churches temperance leagues are very popular and they publish an organ called "The Good Cause." Organizations have also been started in some of the other churches toward the same end.

The Anti-Alcoholic National League has a strong membership in this city of 3000 adults. There are 24 ranches in factories and workshops with a membership of 1300. Thirty junior leagues, organized throughout the federal district, number 6000. This gives a total army of drink fighters in the federal district alone of 10,300. The badge of the society is a red and white ribbon bow and among its advanced membership is Vice-President Corral, the Hon. Felix Romero, president of the supreme court, the Hon. Ezequiel Chavez, assistant secretary of public instruction, etc.

Lord Rosebery at Eton

NOBODY but Lord Rosebery himself would have thought of describing him as the "heavy father." He assumed the character for the first time the other night in the speech in which he expressed his pleasure at the return of his son, the Hon. Niel Primrose, as a member of the present Parliament. Lord Rosebery has no equal on these occasions when he takes the public, so to speak, behind his own hall door and allows them to see something of his family circle. It was only a year or so ago since he told us of the troubles of Lady Sibyl Primrose, now the Countess of Crewe, then a little damsel whose years could be recorded in one figure, in the way of making her mind sit down, and later still he told a story of how he visited his sons at Eton and was asked to give an address to the school. For once the great orator seems to have felt some trepidation. Every one knows the delightful frankness of the public school boys' criticism. Has not Mr. Punch only quite lately shown us a dejected urchin listening dejectedly to a public address from his father, while his club whispers sotto voce from the seat in front, "Never mind, old man, it isn't your fault your governor's making a fool of himself." So the ex-prime minister took counsel with his sons as to what they thought Eton would stand. After mature deliberation their ultimatum was delivered as follows, "You may say anything you jolly well like except that the battle of Waterloo was won in the Eton playing fields." Where was Sergeant Brewster?

On the Mountain

The steps to heaven are builded of our love,
And mine, alas, so timid on the land,
Could never find the way without His hand.
Naught have I in my heart by which to prove
My right to something I've not found below
Except this constant strong desire to rise.
—Mary Mason.

The word "pageant" originally signified the fixed or movable scaffold on which plays were presented.

UNLIMITED GOOD

ONE of the grievous mistakes of the children of Israel during their sojourn in the wilderness was the tendency to doubt the power and love of God. In after years when the Psalmist recounted their experiences and recalled their blessings he warned the people of his day against the danger of falling into the same error. He said, "They turned back and tempted God, and limited the Holy One of Israel." Succeeding generations have wondered at the fear and doubt of a people so divinely favored and at the same time they have been unmindful of the fact that they were guilty of the same sin. The error of limiting good is a very prevalent one, and it is little realized to what extent this error has in all ages robbed humanity of the richest blessings a loving Father has so bountifully bestowed upon the children of His creating. So long as this error remains it will continue to deprive the people of things that are most desired. So long as the belief that good is finite holds the place in human consciousness it seems to hold today mortals will be in bondage to evil, not because evil has power to enforce its claims but simply because mortals through fear and ignorance submit to that which has neither power nor reality.

The Boys' Phonograph

An ingenious plaything for boys is described in Good Literature for April. It is called the boys' phonograph. It consists of a dry goods box large enough for a small boy to sit in. Two opposite sides are made into swinging doors, and the back one is arranged with a deep shelf at the bottom on which the boy sits. Through the center runs a broom handle, and on the outside a crank is attached. A tin can imitating a cylinder is on the middle of the broom handle, which runs through the ends of the cylinder. A horn or mouthpiece is inserted in a hole in the top of the box. When the box is brought into the room to be exhibited the boy who acts as professor or exhibitor has it carried by two others so that both sides are seen by the audience. Then it is set down with the back away from the audience. The professor then opens the box so that all may see inside. He is careful to open the back door first, and the small boy swings out with the door, which hides him from the audience when it is completely swung back. Then the front door is opened and there is apparently an empty box with only the broom and cylinder. When the doors are shut, taking care to close the front one first, the small boy inside may remove the broomstick to make himself more comfortable. Then the professor talks in any way he likes to the mouth of the horn, winds the crank and the boy inside answers. By rehearsing it beforehand a good deal of fun may be worked up. Various absurd noises may be made and repeated, voices of animals and the like.

In Top Time

The Italian boys have introduced a new trick in top spinning. The trick is to pick up the spinning top between the fingers and drop it so that the steel point shall strike a button on the ground. If you think that's easy just try it. The Italian boys are experts at it. The children from Italy usually have tops painted green, the national color.

Criticized Birds' Language

Irma's morning task, one she loves very much, is to feed the birds. One day as she was engaged in this her father pointed to the twittering flock and told her they were English sparrows. "Why, no, papa, dey can't be," said Irma earnestly. "Dey don't talk English!" —Louisville Herald.

Indiana Republican Platform

THE Republicans of Indiana, in state convention at Indianapolis yesterday, adopted a platform that does not indorse the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, which President Taft has on several occasions warmly defended. On the other hand, it does not approve Senator Beveridge's attitude of hostility toward that measure. It refrains from all reference to the act and thus avoids a danger which conservative members of the party in all parts of the country have been fearing for some time past. It takes the much safer course of stating the position of Indiana Republicanism toward the tariff in general terms. In declaring its belief in a protective tariff measured by the difference between the cost of production here and abroad, and stating with positiveness that less than this is unjust to American laborers, while more is unjust to American consumers, it constructs a plank upon which President Taft and Senator Beveridge and all sincere and moderate tariff reformers can stand.

President Taft has defended the Payne-Aldrich tariff law only so far as it has proved to be a step in advance of the Dingley act. He has never said it was all that could be desired; he has always held it was all that at the time could be obtained, and he has asked simply that we give it a fair trial. Senator Beveridge has attacked the measure as one which failed to come up to the pledge made by his party and as one which failed to come up to the demands of the people. In his speech before the convention yesterday he reviewed his course eloquently and defended it to the satisfaction of a great majority of the delegates. Analyzed closely, it will be found that there is nothing irreconcilable between the views represented by Mr. Beveridge and those represented by Mr. Taft. The convention could very consistently, as it did, indorse the national administration and applaud the record of the senior senator; and its platform demand for "the immediate creation of a genuine permanent, non-partisan tariff commission with ample powers and definite duties fixed in the law itself" has greater promise in it for the future of the party and of the country than could have been crowded into columns of partisan platitudes.

The Indiana Republican platform was evidently drawn up by those who realize that harmony and honest purpose alone can carry the party through its present difficulties. It is wise in its allusion to the Roosevelt policies. It is wise in all it has said, and wiser still in the things it has left unsaid.

THE campaign against the long hatpins which the women are at present wearing has reached the halls of Congress. Representative Coudrey of Missouri has dared to present a bill cutting them down. It prohibits any person from wearing in a street car, elevator or any public conveyance, or on the streets, a hatpin the exposed point of which protrudes more than half an inch beyond the crown of the hat. The fair sex will doubtless protest that its rights are being invaded. Women as well as men love freedom in personal matters. Yet we are getting restrictive laws on almost every phase of life.

Representative Coudrey has offered measures on a great variety of subjects, and says he has a lot more left. Congressmen might easily find matters pressing for attention that are much more important than the hatpin, but such extremes have been attained in the reigning styles of headgear for women and girls that repressive measures seem to be demanded. In Chicago $300 will be expended to enlarge the lockers in the Englewood High school in order to accommodate the big hats of the girl students. The same policy in the city's other high schools will bring the expense up to $5000. Should crinoline again become the style, the taxpayers may be called upon to build a dozen new high school structures. A Benson-hurst pastor has delivered an ultimatum against the wearing of immense hats in his church. There is wisdom in moderation.

THE report comes from Connecticut that it is all out of "abandoned farms." That will probably be the condition of all the New England states as soon as the possibilities of their neglected acres are appreciated.

The Fight on Speaker Cannon

THERE appears to be little hope of bringing about a reconciliation between the insurgents and the regulars in the House so long as the Hon. Joseph G. Cannon occupies the speaker's chair. On this point there has been no armistice, nor does one seem possible. On the contrary, the insurgents seem to regard it at once as a privilege and a duty to embarrass the regulars by attacking the speaker, with the ultimate object of unseating him. It is now very generally understood in Washington that a supreme effort will be made on the last day of the present session to have the speakership declared vacant. This, of course, will be an insurgent move, and there is no reason to believe that it will be successful. The Democrats are not disposed to vote the speaker out, since only political disadvantage could come to them as a consequence of being forced at this time to name a candidate of their own for the chair. This disadvantage would be increased rather than diminished if by any chance they succeeded in electing him. Without a working majority at his back, he would be worse than powerless, worse than useless. The impression is that in case the insurgents attempt to carry out their program, the Democrats will absent themselves to avoid the issue. But, going so far as to assume that the Democrats would help the insurgents to unseat Speaker Cannon and to elect in his place a representative of the insurgent group, the victory would be no less barren and embarrassing, for the regulars would still have it in their power to control the proceedings in the next session.

But it is among the possibilities that Speaker Cannon may be advised by his friends to resign and that he may act upon this advice. The prospects of the next House being Republican are gray enough as it is; they are becoming grayer every day. There is at least ground for hope that with a settlement of the dispute, by the election of a speaker upon whom regulars and insurgents would agree, and the hurrying through of necessary legislation, some lost ground might be regained. It is even possible that the restoration of harmony in the House might lead to a better feeling throughout the entire organization, and that the prevalence and growth of this feeling might turn the scales in favor of the party. Wisdom would seem to dictate that the speaker retire.

THE announcement that only two Boston schools will continue school garden work this summer comes somewhat as a surprise at a time when so much is being done on the part of the state and the national government to create and to foster interest in agriculture. We are told that the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which has heretofore offered prizes for this work, will not be able to do so this year because of contemplated large expenditures on its exhibition hall, but the School Garden Association should not become lax in its efforts. The young show an eager interest in the growing of flowers and vegetables, and wherever an opportunity has been offered them school boys and girls have taken up the idea enthusiastically. Especial success has attended experiments made in Worcester and numerous other cities, notably New York.

Henry L. Clapp, principal of the George Putnam school in this city, who is called the founder of the school garden movement, regrets to admit that Boston is not keeping up with her sister cities in this matter. He has lost none of his interest in the work, however, and will put new energy into it this season. His school has a large tract of land divided into beds eight by twelve feet and capable of accommodating fifty pupils. Mr. Clapp believes that if the idea were carried out systematically and thoroughly it would result in great practical benefit to the foreigners who now crowd certain sections of our cities. He thinks the education regarding the soil and crops would ultimately lead to their seeking homes where they could cultivate gardens and supply food for their tables. This would tend to still the talk of high prices.

Joseph Fels, the philanthropist, who has purchased farms in England and let them out to small farmers, says that when trained in modern methods they find it possible to make a comfortable living from five acres. What can be done by intensive farming has been proved by the efforts of the department of agriculture among the boys of the South. More than 12,000 youths less than 18 years old planted and cultivated an acre of corn each last year. The average yield of corn to the acre in 1909 was a little more than 25 bushels. One South Carolina boy produced 152½ bushels; a Mississippi boy, 147 bushels; an Arkansas boy, 135, and a boy in Virginia, 122 bushels. The average raised by each of the 12,000 was 60 bushels.

The school gardens will give us more farmers, more florists, more horticulturists—and we need them.

PRESIDENT TAFT has accepted an invitation to address the Farmers' Union during its national rally at St. Louis from May 2 to May 8. This promises to be one of the largest and most important gatherings of farmers the country has ever known. The "interest" which will be represented in the convention is certainly one to be considered not only by the politician but by the statesman. Lately it has asserted itself in a new way and with more dignity than ever before. The farmers of the country are not, of course, all united; no association, no matter how pretentious, could embrace them all; but it has been found more than once, that on great public questions the farmers of the land are inclined to vote one way, and that the farming sentiment, like the farmers' prosperity, affects the entire nation. When it is considered that the farms in the United States are numbered by the million, that the acres under cultivation are numbered by the hundreds of millions, and that the products of these acres are now valued in sums that run up to billions, it becomes clear that we have here an industry deserving of the closest attention that can be bestowed upon it.

President Taft seems to realize the importance of that factor in the make-up of our national organization. He may know that while the farmers of the country are prosperous they are by no means content. Prosperity on the farm has had much the same effect as prosperity in the factory or the bank. It has created new needs, new aspirations. While the farmer is much better off in many respects than he was fifty years ago, he knows that the world all around him is moving, and he wants to move with it.

For this reason the Farmers' Union is anxious to learn how certain reforms which the agriculturists are desirous of bringing about are viewed by the nation's chief.

Reciprocity with Canada

A PLEASANTLY surprising result of the recent satisfactory adjustment of the tariff differences between this country and Canada is the manner in which the settlement is seized upon by newspapers of all shades of political opinion in this country to illustrate the ease with which a reciprocity treaty between the two countries could be arranged at this time, were the legal way open for it, as well as the popular approval that would be given to a compact of this character. The representatives of the people in Washington greatly misunderstand the sentiment of the country today if they do not see in the satisfaction which the recent tariff agreement with Canada has given something more than mere relief over the avoidance of a serious commercial dispute. Canada could have survived, and probably would have prospered, had we imposed upon her the maximum scale. We should have survived, and in all probability we should have prospered, had we lost 50 per cent, or 75 per cent, or even 100 per cent of Canada's trade. It is among the possibilities that both nations might thrive indefinitely in mutual commercial exclusiveness. But self-interest is not the standard by which this matter is now being measured. The feeling is prevalent, and it is growing, that we have not been fair, much less generous, in the treatment we have been according a perfectly friendly neighbor and good customer through all these years.

As a consequence of this awakening, there is less satisfaction than there was with the present tariff arrangement between the two countries. It is, at best, regarded as a temporary expedient. The belief is growing daily that reciprocity with Canada is called for as a measure of common justice as well as a matter of sound public policy, and that it is inevitable.

President and Farmers' Union

A YOUNG Swiss who has been with a big importing house in Rio de Janeiro for eight years is in this country on a visit and gives American merchants and manufacturers some valuable information. He thinks our manufacturers lose a great deal of trade with Brazil by compelling its merchants to come all the way up here to look for novelties and by trying to do business entirely by correspondence. His house has twelve men traveling for it in Brazil and 360 agents in various parts. They sold 600 American typewriters of one make last year. This South American observer cannot understand why our manufacturers do not think it worth while to send out commercial travelers to Brazil. The Germans are every year increasing the number they send down there, and they are doing lots of business.

It is of no use for a foreign house to imagine it can sell goods in Brazil by correspondence, especially in the interior. Scarcely any merchant in an interior town will take the trouble to reply to a letter, but if you show them samples, says our informant, they will trade every time, and the Brazilians do not mind prices so long as the quality is good.

The crops in Brazil promise well, and indications are that this will be the best year ever experienced from a business standpoint. There is an excellent market waiting for American goods and a fine opportunity for the expansion of American trade, we are informed. The commercial traveler need not expect to get back within a year or eighteen months. The rural districts are somewhat behindhand in traveling facilities; there are practically no railways in northern Brazil, and to get about the traveler has to depend on a little local steamship company. On the Amazon one may charter and stock a steamer and trade all the way up into Peru. For an American house with enterprise and representatives posted on local business methods, Brazil offers a profitable field.

FIGURES can hardly give one an idea of the wonderful product of corn in the United States every year. All the gold and silver in the country is not equal in value to the corn crop of 1909. Last year the area planted was 108,771,000 acres. It is expected that the 110,000,000 mark will be reached this year. The yield of 1909 was 2,772,376,000 bushels. Corn grows in 120 days from the time of planting. Out in the great corn belt last year the corn farmers made the ground give up to them about $14,000,000 every day of those 120. Or, in other words, each day from the time the corn farmers put the seed in the ground $14,000,000 was poured into their treasury until a grand total of $1,652,822,000 had been accumulated.

During the past nine years the value of each corn crop was increased by $100,000,000. The expansion in area planted was 2,700,000 acres a year, and the annual increase in yield was 74,000,000 bushels on the average. The progress of acreage and yield between 1900 and 1909 was 30 per cent or more, while the increase in the value of the crop on the farm ran up to 120 per cent. When corn sells at from 70 cents to $1 a bushel, there is no wonder great enthusiasm prevails over the crop. More attention is being given to the selection of seed and to the methods of cultivation with the purpose of securing larger yield. Not only in the West, but also in the South is the farmer looking more to corn production for his income. Hence 1910 is likely to be a banner year.

HULL HOUSE, Chicago, has apportioned 400 garden plots among the poor families of that city for cultivation this summer. It is not only the vegetables raised on these plots that make the movement worth while; the tilling of these city gardens very frequently leads their owners to larger farms and better means of living, out in the country.

IT IS ONLY reasonable to suppose that the decisions of the United States supreme court in the Nebraska and Arkansas cases, just handed down, will be gladly welcomed by the railroad corporations of the country, at large, inasmuch as the opinions of both Justice Holmes and Justice White convey the assurance that these properties may continue to look confidently to the constitution for adequate protection. The decision in the Nebraska case dealt with and declared invalid a law compelling railroads to build switches to all grain elevators along their tracks upon request of the elevator owners, while the decision in the Arkansas case disposed in like manner of an attempt to penalize an interstate railroad for failing to supply a sufficient number of cars to accommodate interstate traffic.

In neither of these cases is the authority of the state Legislature or the state courts impaired, where that authority is exercised in accordance with the provisions of the constitution relating to the rights of private property. Justice Holmes concedes at once the power of the state to require corporations to live up to the terms of their charters, but this, he holds, does not justify a proceeding which would legalize the taking of corporate property without compensation. The Arkansas case was of a more technical character, but in dealing with it Justice White also took occasion to refer to the wisdom of sailing under the flag of the constitution.

There is no disguising the fact that in recent years there has been considerable uncertainty in business circles with regard to the measure of protection reasonably assured to corporations, and especially railroad corporations, in a contest with radical reformers. It is for this reason that such decisions as those just handed down in the supreme court, though perhaps of no great importance intrinsically, will have a steadying and stimulating effect upon the business of the country.

THE favorable report on Representative McCall's bill providing for publicity of contributions made in national and congressional campaigns has at last been forced from its hiding place and is expected to become a law.

THE railless trolley, we are told, saves the company the cost of right of way, but a payless trolley would be more saving for the public. Not infrequently it rides on a seatless trolley.

IT IS safe to conclude that when Mr. Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot meet at Genoa forestry will be one of the branches of government most discussed.
